Parliament relocated – Welcome to the Democracy Quarter!

The Parliament Building, a magnificent edifice by Theophil Hansen which dates back to the 19th century, is getting on in years and needs major renovation. Parliament's home will therefore turn into a building site for the next few years, but parliamentary business will continue unhindered and undisturbed – at different locations which form a coherent area: the Democracy Quarter. The Austrian Parliament and its work will thus enjoy high visibility, and it will of course remain possible for the interested public to visit the National Council and the Federal Council and to obtain information on parliamentary activities.

Access for visitors of plenary sittings and for guided tours will be at the Main Entrance at Josefsplatz. On Heldenplatz, services for the public will be offered at two additional locations: the Democracy Workshop in the Ring Pavilion, and the Info Point Platz.Mit.Bestimmung in the Burg Pavilion. In front of the historical Parliament Building, the Info Point Bau.Stelle informs about the ongoing renovation. The Parliamentary Library's services will be available at the Palais Epstein.
