EXPLANATORY MEMORANDUM

1. CONTEXT OF THE PROPOSAL

- Reasons for and objectives of the proposal

Integrated financial markets bring significant benefits to the funding of the European economy and for promoting jobs and growth on a sound and sustainable basis. To promote financial integration and market integrity while safeguarding financial stability, the EU internal market for financial services requires common rules and strong supervisory coordination. When the EU overhauled its financial system in response to the financial crisis, and in line with global efforts, it therefore introduced a Single Rulebook for financial regulation in Europe and created the European Supervisory Authorities ("ESAs"). The ESAs constitute an institutional cornerstone of the comprehensive reform package and have played a key role in ensuring that the financial markets across the EU are well regulated, strong and stable. They contribute to the development and consistent application of the Single Rulebook, solve cross-border problems, and thereby promote both regulatory and supervisory convergence.

Despite the post-crisis measures, there remains significant potential to enhance regulatory and supervisory convergence in the internal market. Integrated financial markets require more integrated supervisory arrangements to function effectively, while more centralised supervisory arrangements can, in turn, foster market integration.

For this reason, the EU has engaged in further integration across the broader financial sector on a sound and stable basis. In particular, the Capital Markets Union ("CMU") has been launched so as to lay the foundations for a fully functional internal market for capital markets. In this context, the Five Presidents' Report on Completing Europe's Economic and Monetary Union of June 2015¹ highlighted the need to strengthen the EU supervisory framework, leading ultimately to a single capital-markets supervisor. More recently, the Commission Reflection Paper on the deepening of the Economic and Monetary Union² suggests that a review of the EU supervisory framework – in particular of the European Securities and Markets Authority ("ESMA") - should deliver the first steps towards such a single supervisor by 2019. The Reflection Paper also called for completing the Financial Union - comprising both a Banking Union and a Capital Markets Union – by 2019 so as to guarantee the integrity of the euro and improve the functioning of the euro area and the EU as a whole. Global financial markets are strongly interconnected, and the EU's regulatory framework is largely based on international standards agreed in the wake of the financial crisis notably among G20 countries. As the EU is striving to accelerate the completion of the CMU, it is therefore essential that EU supervisory arrangements continue to develop in a manner which allows to reap the full potential of internationally integrated financial markets while ensuring that cross-border risks between the EU and the rest of the world can be monitored and managed effectively. The ESAs have a key role to play in this regard.

Finally, the decision of the United Kingdom to leave the EU reinforces these challenges for supervisory arrangements within the remaining EU27. The future departure of the EU's currently largest financial centre means that EU27 capital markets need to develop further and supervisory arrangements must be strengthened to ensure that financial markets continue to support the economy on an adequate and sound basis.

The objective of the present proposal is to adjust and upgrade the ESAs framework to ensure they can assume an enhanced responsibility for financial market supervision. The ESAs must be adequately equipped in terms of powers, governance and funding.

First, where existing powers of the ESAs have proven partially insufficient and unclearly defined, for example as regards the consistent application of EU law, the drafting of technical advice or the provision of ongoing support to equivalence decisions, they must be strengthened and improved. The current scope of the ESAs' mandate must also be reconsidered in light of the policy objectives of the CMU. More common direct supervision in targeted areas is necessary to ensure more consistent supervisory practices and implementation of EU financial services rules. The 2017 review of the ESA Regulations concluded that the supervision of certain activities and entities with particular importance for the Union as a whole or with a significant degree of cross-border business should be carried out by the ESAs instead of by national competent authorities. Similarly, the ESAs should be more involved in the authorisation and supervision of entities from non-EU countries that are active in the Union.

Second, this proposal aims at establishing a more effective governance of the ESAs. The incentive structure in the decision-making process of the ESAs as it stands today leads to the absence of decisions in particular in the area of regulatory convergence and supervisory convergence, or promotes decisions that are predominantly oriented towards national instead of broader EU interests. This reflects, to some extent, an inherent tension between the European mandate of the ESAs and the national mandate of the competent authorities that are members of the ESA Boards.³ This position is not well aligned with the objective of supervisory convergence. A greater role for the ESAs in deepening financial integration or strengthening the stability of the internal market will also require more effective convergence powers.⁴

Third, the ESAs need an appropriate funding base which allows them to allocate resources in relation to their needs to fulfil their objective. Current budget arrangements constrain and will continue to constrain the ESAs' activities, as Member States for different reasons might be unwilling to increase national contributions further.

The present proposal sets out specific amendments to the ESA Regulations⁵ and various sector acts⁶ to reinforce the powers, governance and funding framework of the ESAs, as these are the areas which need to be reinforced to allow the ESAs to meet the challenges outlined above.

The impact assessment report accompanying this proposal considers the costs and benefits of these amendments. It sets out a number of options of measures intended to enhance the powers of the ESAs at EU level, improve their governance (including decision-making), and to ensure that their funding framework is sustainable and commensurate with current and future tasks. The impact assessment provides comprehensive evidence that the proposed amendments contribute effectively to reinforcing the ESA framework and thereby to the overall stability of the EU financial system, while keeping costs to the EU General Budget and stakeholders at a minimum. The proposed amendments also contribute to the further development and deepening of the CMU, in line with the political priorities of the Commission.

- Consistency with existing policy provisions in the policy area

This proposal is consistent with a number of other existing EU policy provisions and ongoing initiatives with the aim of ensuring effective and efficient EU-level supervisory arrangements.

Since the start of the financial crisis, the EU and its Member States have engaged in a fundamental overhaul of financial supervision and regulation. The EU has initiated a number of reforms to create a safer, sounder, more transparent and responsible financial system that works for the economy and society as a whole. This has included the creation of the Single Supervisory Mechanism and the Single Resolution Mechanism and Single Resolution Board for specific and discreet responsibilities over supervision. This proposal is consistent and complementary with the tasks and functions of these bodies.

This proposal is also consistent with the Single Rulebook for financial legislation to which the ESAs provide a significant contribution through their work. The purpose of the Single Rulebook is to set common rules across the EU that ensures financial stability and a level playing field, as well as a high level of consumer and investor protection. For example, the proposal is consistent with the existing Capital Requirements Directive/Regulation (banks) and the Solvency II Directive (insurance undertakings) which aim at making the financial sector more stable. This proposal is also consistent with the existing framework for payment services and mortgages in relation to consumer protection.

As regards ongoing initiatives, the Commission is also proposing today a legislative initiative to reinforce the European Systemic Risk Board ("ESRB"), which together with the ESAs form the European System of Financial Supervision introduced in the wake of the financial crisis. Other recent examples include: the Commission's proposal for targeted amendments to EMIR⁷ to enhance the EU level supervision in relation to the authorisation of Central Counterparty ("CCPs") and requirements for the recognition of third-country CCPs; and the Commission's proposal regarding personal pension products⁸ enhancing EIOPA's role by granting it powers to authorise these new products in order to grant them a high-quality label at pan-European level and allow their distribution on an EU-wide basis.

Finally, this proposal is consistent with existing EU policy provisions in relation to the implementation and enforcement of third-country provisions in EU financial legislation as set out in the Commission's staff working document on equivalence.⁹ The staff working document provides an overview of the equivalence process with third countries in EU financial services legislation. It sets out the relevant experience and identifies certain areas for increased attention which are partly addressed in this proposal. In view of EU policy objectives, tax good governance and anti-money laundering based on global standards are important elements for further policy development. To ensure policy coherence and to strengthen safeguards against tax avoidance and money laundering, the Commission will continue to integrate these matters into the appropriate EU legislation, including for financial services, and could consider their integration into equivalence processes

- Consistency with other Union policies

This proposal is consistent with the Commission's ongoing efforts to further develop the CMU. A more effective supervisory framework is a key element for more integrated capital markets as it contributes to more consistent implementation of the rules for the financial sector. In this context, the Five Presidents' Report of June 2015¹⁰ highlights the need to strengthen the EU supervisory framework, leading ultimately to a single capital-markets supervisor. The need to further develop and integrate the EU capital markets is stressed in the Communication on the CMU of September 2016¹¹ and the Communication on the mid-term review of the CMU¹².

This proposal is also consistent with the Commission's commitments undertaken in the CMU to respond to two new challenges in today's markets: sustainable finance and financial technology ("FinTech").

With regard to sustainable finance, the Commission has committed within the framework of the CMU initiative to strengthen the EU's leadership on sustainable investment and finance. New environmental, social and governance related risks and opportunities are changing the financial sector and require adaptations to the supervisory framework and approach. Moreover, the financial sector has a key role to play to ensure the transition to a low-carbon more energy-efficient economy. A strong coordination and convergence of supervisory attitudes towards sustainability is necessary at EU level. In this regard, this proposal is consistent with the Energy Union Strategy, the EU's commitments to a Circular Economy and the Sustainable Development Goals.

The ESAs should also contribute to harnessing the potential and opportunities of Financial Technology ("FinTech"), whilst addressing possible risks in this area, for example through more consistent practices in the application of regulatory requirements. This implies a better integration of FinTech-related aspects in the ESA supervisory work. In this context, this proposal is also consistent with the Digital Single Market Strategy. New technologies are changing the financial sector. This also requires adaptations to the supervisory framework and approach. National supervisors have taken various initiatives, which could harm the proper functioning of the internal market if not properly coordinated. A stronger coordination and convergence of supervisory attitudes towards technological innovation is necessary at EU level, for instance through the setting up of an EU innovation hub in the ESAs.

The targeted changes in the current governance model are also in line with the Commission's efforts to make decision-making for within the EU decentralised agencies more operational and independent. In the area of financial services other European agencies or institutions, such as the European Central Bank or the Single Resolution Board have a permanent and independent preparatory body, which has its own powers and tasks, and can decide on certain issues or participate in the decision-making process. The establishment of Executive Boards for the ESAs with permanent members and with an exclusive mandate is in line with the existing safeguards for enhancing the EU dimension in the agencies decision-making process.

Finally, with regard to funding, while the majority of the EU decentralised agencies are funded by the EU Budget, there are several EU agencies which receive mixed of fully private funding. In that respect, the shift to industry contributions for the ESAs' budget is in line with existing EU practice.

2. LEGAL BASIS, SUBSIDIARITY AND PROPORTIONALITY

• Legal basis

Legal basis of all amendments is Article 114 of the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union ("TFEU"). This provision is the legal basis of all Regulations covered by this proposal.

It is proposed to adapt the ESAs founding Regulations to new developments, so as to improve the functioning of the ESAs in the interest of convergence in the internal market and thus a smoother functioning of the latter. The analysis carried out as part of the impact assessment report identifies the areas of the ESAs' framework that need to be amended to reinforce the stability and effectiveness of the EU supervisory arrangements and hence the EU financial system.

Further changes to the sector legislation are necessary in order to allow the ESAs to use the full potential of their enhanced powers. The impact assessment report and the accompanying evaluation demonstrate that EU action is justified and necessary to address the problems identified in the area of powers available to the ESAs, their governance framework and their funding framework.

- Subsidiarity (for non-exclusive competence)

Because the ESAs are Union bodies their governing regulations can only be amended by the Union legislator. Moreover, the amendments serve a more consistent functioning of the internal market, an objective that cannot be reached by Member States acting individually.

In the case of funds covered by the EuVECA, EuSEF and ELTIF Regulations, the establishment of ESMA as a single supervisory body ensures that uniform requirements and conditions of the three Regulations are applied consistently across all Member States. The single supervision will decrease the amount, and diversity, of costs and time spent on administration and will thus allow managers to lower transaction and operational costs. It will streamline administrative processes underpinning authorisation/registration of the EuVECA, EuSEF and ELTIF funds as well as strengthen the level playing field by centralising their supervision regardless of where the funds are established. The single supervision will further support market integration in these sectors and enhance market funding to the EU economy through those funds.

With regards to the Markets in Financial Instruments Regulation/Directive and similarly to critical benchmarks, data reporting services are an inherently Union-wide business and the resulting regulatory and supervisory problems cannot be addressed by Member State action alone.

With respect to the new ESMA coordination function this is already defined in the ESMA Regulation and the respective Union legislative acts. It can therefore only be enhanced through changes to Union law.

With respect to the Benchmark Regulation, critical benchmarks are of major economic importance as they are used in financial instruments (especially derivatives), financial contracts and by investment funds in the entire Union. The requirement to form colleges of supervisors for some of the critical benchmarks from at least the Member States of the benchmarks' administrators and of the benchmarks' supervised contributors already points to the fact that such benchmarks cannot be supervised by a single national supervisor and it is therefore necessary to set out the necessary arrangements at Union level.

Having all administrators of critical benchmarks under direct supervision by ESMA is proportionate as these benchmarks are of crucial importance for the Union and the current supervisory colleges are large with the risk of not being sufficiently flexible enough in a crisis situation.

Benchmarks provided in third countries can be used in the Union if they are either recognised or endorsed by a competent authority in the Union or the regulatory and supervisory regime of the country in which they are located has to be recognised as equivalent to the regime established by the Benchmark Regulation. While the equivalence decision is taken by the Commission and the supervisor of the third country has to establish cooperation arrangements with ESMA, endorsement and recognition are decided upon by national competent authorities. This requires numerous national competent authorities to deal with such requests and carries the risks that benchmark administrators from third country try to select a national competent authority that seems to be more liberal in its decisions and in the resulting supervision of the administrator ('forum shopping'). As the administrator is located in a third country, the main argument for national supervision, proximity to the supervised entities, does not apply. Establishing ESMA as the competent authority for third country benchmark administrators would increase efficiency and reduce the risk of forum shopping and divergences in supervision of these entities. This can, however, not be achieved through Member State action alone.

In order to ensure that ESMA is able to directly supervise certain benchmark administrators, it is necessary to amend the Benchmark Regulation with a number of delegated acts to further specify some provisions of that Regulation.

In relation to the Prospectus Regulation, since 2011, ESMA has invested significant time and effort to foster regulatory convergence amongst national competent authorities with regard to the scrutiny and approval of prospectuses. This has led to the creation of "Supervisory Briefings" which sets out commonly-agreed principles which national competent authorities are invited to apply when approving prospectuses. ESMA has also carried out two peer reviews on the prospectus approval process in 2012 and 2015, as evidence emerged of diverging practices among Member States. While being very useful, those actions have not fully achieved their objective of promoting full supervisory convergence and, given issuers' ability, in a certain number of cases, to choose which competent authority will approve their prospectus, the persistence of divergent practices amongst national competent authorities still leaves room for regulatory arbitrage and efficiency losses.

The Commission has identified certain types of prospectuses which, due to the nature of the securities and issuers concerned, involve a cross-border dimension within the Union, a level of technical complexity and potential risks of regulatory arbitrage which are such that their centralised supervision by ESMA would achieve more effective and efficient results than their supervision at national level. These are the wholesale non-equity prospectuses offered only to qualified investors, the prospectuses which relate to specific types of complex securities, such as asset backed securities, or which are drawn up by specialist issuers and the prospectuses drawn up by third country issuers entities in accordance with Regulation (EU) 2017/1129.

The centralisation of their approval, as well as all related supervisory and enforcement activities, at the level of ESMA will enhance the quality, consistency and efficiency of supervision in the Union, create a level playing field for issuers and lead to a reduction of the timeline for approvals. It will eliminate the need to choose a 'home Member State' and prevent forum-shopping.

- Proportionality

This proposal makes targeted changes to strengthen the EU supervisory framework to improve sustainably, stability and effectiveness of the financial system throughout the EU and to enhance consumer and investor protection. For that purpose it sets out targeted and well calibrated changes to the EU level supervisory framework with a more effective and efficient governance. It recalibrates existing tasks and powers of the ESAs and grants the ESAs new powers to enable the ESAs to address new developments, including in the area of technology, but also to address further increase in intra-EU cross-border activities and the likely further integration between EU financial markets and the rest of the world. In addition, the proposal contains an adapted funding system to ensure that the ESAs' funding is sustainable, proportionate as well as commensurate with their task.

As regards sector specific acts, the amendments proposed are in essence confined to introducing direct supervision by ESMA. They have been selected in relation to the specificities of the sectors concerned. Moreover, it is necessary make synchronise the amendments to the so-called MIFIR Regulation) with limited changes into 2009/138/EC (“Solvency II”). Therefore, a separate proposal amending that directive is also proposed.

None of the elements proposed goes beyond what is necessary for attaining the objectives set.

Moreover, in accordance with the principle of proportionality anchored in the Treaty, the content and form of the ESAs' actions and measures shall not exceed what is necessary to achieve the objectives of this Regulation and shall be proportionate to the nature, scale and complexity of the risks inherent in the financial activity or business of the institutions or undertaking that is affected by the action of the relevant ESA.

- Choice of the instrument

This proposal seeks the amendment of the current ESA Regulations and various pieces of sectoral financial legislation.¹³ All acts to be amended by the present proposal take the form of Regulations; the corresponding amendments are therefore proposed as a single (omnibus) amending Regulation.

In addition, it is proposed to amend the Directive on Markets in Financial Instrument¹⁴, (mainly to mirror the amendments to the so-called MIFIR Regulation) and to introduce limited changes into 2009/138/EC (“Solvency II”). For these two purposes, an amending Directive is proposed separately.

Finally, and equally through a separate document, the Commission adjusts its recent proposal for a Regulation amending both ESMA and EMIR.¹⁵

3. RESULTS OF EX-POST EVALUATIONS, STAKEHOLDER CONSULTATIONS AND IMPACT ASSESSMENTS

- Ex-post evaluations/fitness checks of existing legislation

The impact assessment and evaluation accompanying this proposal provides an analysis of the existing ESA framework to see whether it has allowed the ESAs to meet their objective to sustainably reinforce the stability and effectiveness of the financial system and enhance consumer and investor protection.

As regards effectiveness and efficiency of the ESAs, the analysis made concludes that the ESAs have broadly delivered on their current objectives. However, targeted improvements are needed to face future challenges. In particular the analysis concludes that:

- a. ESA powers could be enhanced in certain areas to ensure that tasks can be better performed. As a result, better regulatory and supervisory outcomes for all market participants consumers across the EU, and effective and efficient handling of cross border risk could be expected;
- b. the current ESA governance framework makes it difficult to manage conflicts between EU and national interests, creating the risk that ESA decisions are not always taken in the common interest of the EU, that decision-making is delayed or that there is an inaction bias, notably as regards non-regulatory activities (binding mediation, breach of EU law procedures, initiation of peer reviews);
- c. the current funding framework is not commensurate to the tasks the ESAs perform and even less so going forward and considering the tasks the ESAs will shoulder in the future; it also seems to lead to uneven contributions by national competent authorities which are not easy to justify.

In terms of coherence, the ESAs work on regulatory issues is fully coherent with the building up of the broader EU supervisory framework. It is also coherent with the completion of the Single Rulebook. However, constraints coming from the governance and funding structure and the effectiveness of the ESAs powers have not allowed the ESAs to focus sufficiently on promoting consistent application of the relevant financial services legislation adopted by the EU.

In terms of relevance, the analysis concluded that the ESAs framework is relevant.

Finally, the ESAs' framework has clearly created added value for the EU because their work is indispensable for promoting the Single Market for financial services.

- Stakeholder consultations

The Commission service conducted an extensive public consultation in the spring of 2017 on the operations of the ESAs. The consultation attracted almost 230 responses. Contributions came from a wide variety of respondent groups: 26% public authorities or international organisations, 71% organisations or companies and 3% private individuals.

A number of comments, position papers and contributions were also received outside the public consultation, including official positions provided by some governments. Even though they are not reflected in the statistics from EU survey, they have been taken into account in the analysis underlying this proposal.

Overall, respondents consider the establishment of the ESAs a major improvement and an important step towards supervisory convergence in the Union. Most support a greater role for ESAs in improving supervisory convergence. Many stakeholders acknowledge that the implementation of the CMU and the decision of UK to leave the Union create a new situation which requires reflections about strengthening EU-level supervision, in particular with regard to cross-border activities and equivalence with third countries.

With respect to the ESAs' powers, while many respondents object to significantly increasing ESAs' powers at this stage, some recognise their limitations and would like to see targeted improvements. Most respondents argue the available tools broadly suffice and should be better and more fully used. There is broad support for extending/clarifying powers on equivalence monitoring.

Consumer organisations see significant shortcomings in the enforcement of consumer protection rules which they see as either inefficient or detached from most detrimental problems at national level. They see a need for extending the ESA's fields of activity in the area of consumer protection. Most respondents argue that it is difficult to ensure a proper balance in the ESA stakeholder groups together with the geographical balance. Representatives of consumers and users complain that they are outnumbered by the representatives of financial institutions and thus the opinions of stakeholder groups are not balanced. A number of organisations find that the ESAs' powers to ban products should be extended to those that are prone to consumer detriment.

Respondents to the ESA public consultation explicitly support the direct supervision at EU level of central counterparty clearing houses ("CCPs")¹⁶ and of data reporting service providers ("DRSPs") which service the whole EU rather than specific national markets. Many respondents do not reply to the question on direct supervision. Some reply to the question whether ESMA should be entrusted with direct supervision of pan-European collective investment funds and support it, but mostly they do not distinguish between different types of funds.

Views expressed against extending direct supervision by ESMA to new areas mainly refer to the following arguments: national-based supervision is considered best suited to deal with the different market structures of Member States. Supervision by ESMA could conflict with national competence for retail investor protection and financial stability as well as taxation, litigation and conflict resolution. Operational difficulties such as control of local requirements related to distribution arrangements or marketing are also raised. Instead, existing tools to ensure supervisory convergence should be better explored to develop integrated capital markets.

The main arguments in favour of direct supervision by ESMA mentioned are: some respondents recognise potential merits in ESMA supervision over entities or instruments with a pan-European dimension which would allow elimination of differences between supervisory practices, but would not prevent different market structures from being taken into account where relevant. They consider that such solutions are appropriate to address the problem of fragmentation due to diverging application of the relevant EU rules and ensuring risks of regulatory arbitrage, characterising the current regime.

¹⁶ A Commission proposal on CCPs has already been adopted and is therefore not discussed in this impact assessment. It introduces a more pan-European approach to the supervision of EU CCPs, to ensure further supervisory convergence and accelerate certain procedures. ESMA will be responsible for ensuring a more coherent and consistent supervision of EU CCPs as well more robust supervision of CCPs in non-EU countries.

In the area of ESA's governance overall, stakeholders consider that the ESAs' boards and chairpersons have performed well. About half of the respondents see added value in the governance changes referred to in the public consultation document. While the majority of public authorities do not support ESA governance changes, some of these views may be attributed to some extent to them not wanting to see their influence diminish.

There are varying degrees of support for adding independent members with voting rights and specific tasks to ESA Boards. While public sector mostly oppose it (though half do not even reply), private sector views are split with several pointing out inherent conflicts of interest in the current set-up. With respect to empowering the Chairpersons, a majority, mainly public authorities oppose it, while the majority of the industry associations argue for improvements.

As regards funding, many of the stakeholders recognise ESAs' current resource constraints as well as the constraints on the EU and national budgets. A high number of respondents agree that the ESAs will need adequate and sustainable funding in order to meet ambitious targets and enhance their operations. Many respondents note that the level of funding for the ESAs should depend on their responsibilities and be based on the outcome of the ESA review.

Roughly half of the respondents take a position on whether the ESAs should be partially or fully funded by the industry. A clear majority do not support revising the current funding framework replacing contributions from national competent authority by contributions from the industry. Though still in a minority, there is greater support for a partly industry funded system.

- Impact assessment

The Commission carried out an impact assessment of relevant policy options. These options were assessed against the key general objective of sustainably reinforcing the stability and effectiveness of the financial system throughout the EU and to enhance consumer and investor protection.

In preparing the impact assessment, the Commission carried out an evaluation of the operations of the ESAs which highlighted some important shortcomings. These included: (a) insufficiently defined powers to ensure effective supervision to the same standards across the EU; (b) the absence of powers to effectively deal with cross-border risks relating to interconnectedness within the EU and between the EU and the rest of the world; (c) a governance framework that leads to a misalignment of incentives in the decision-making processes; and (d) a funding framework that is not ensuring sufficiency in relation to the tasks allocated to the ESAs.

The scope of the impact assessment covered the areas of: (1) powers; (2) governance; and (3) funding of the ESAs, to meet the identified shortcomings and new challenges, such as regulatory and supervisory convergence. Shortcomings for governance and funding are common to the three ESAs, as they share the same rules. Changes to their powers are mainly targeted to specific sectors for ESMA and to supervisory convergence oversight for all ESAs.

The options assessed were:

In governance: (a) no policy action; no modifications to the current governance structure is envisaged; (b) targeted changes to the current governance model, such as differentiation of the decision-making powers by their nature, enhancing the selection procedure of the Chairperson and (c) opening up the Board of Supervisors to independent, permanent (non-voting) members.

In powers: (a) no policy action; current powers in relation to regulatory and supervisory convergence tasks remain unchanged as well as ESMA's direct supervisory responsibilities; (b) an option to clarify certain existing powers and strengthen oversight; (c) an option to clarify certain existing powers and to provide ESMA with additional direct supervisory powers in targeted areas; and (d) centralise the supervision of financial services, banking and insurance in the three ESAs.

In funding: (a) no policy action;¹⁷ (b) adjusted public funding to take into consideration the size of the domestic financial sector in any given Member State; (c) mixed public-private funding in which contributions from domestic private sectors replace contributions from the national CAs; and (d) a funding system fully financed by the private sector.

The above options were then compared using various criteria¹⁸ to identify those that best address the shortcomings identified in the problem definition of the impact assessment and in the evaluation.

Following this analysis,

- the preferred option as regards governance includes independent members with voting powers alongside the national competent authorities in the decision-making process; introduces a new appointment process and role for the Chairperson and replaces the Management Board by an independent Executive Board composed of full time members that are externally appointed.
- the preferred option as regards powers clarifies some powers, such as giving a formal role to the ESAs in the ongoing monitoring of the equivalence process, improving the ability for the ESAs to ensure the correct application of Union law, and transfers supervisory powers to the ESAs in targeted areas with predominantly third country or cross-border relevance.
- the preferred option as regards funding keeps the current annual EU contribution to ESAs' budget, but replaces the residual funding from national CAs with private sector funding.

The preferred options identified were those that best ensured that the ESAs would be able to cope with the growing workload and anticipate the changes to the supervisory framework coming from sectoral legislation. In addition, the preferred options were mostly focusing on targeted changes to the current regime, rather than a complete overhaul. This was in line with the conclusion in the evaluation that the ESAs' framework has been working relatively well in relation to the significant challenges that they had to face and the available means to meet their mandates.

¹⁷ Direct supervision (in the case of ESMA) would have remained fully industry funded

The impact assessment also reviewed the cumulative impact of the preferred options, both in qualitative and quantitative terms. The analysis indicated that applying the preferred options, the ESAs will be better able to fulfil their existing mandates and ensure greater supervisory convergence in addition to the preparation of regulatory products.

More specifically, there are three reasons for the ESAs' expected better performance: first, the incentive structure in the governance of the ESAs will be improved by balancing out incentives to protect national interests in the decision-making process so that, in particular, powers to promote regulatory and supervisory convergence can be used more effectively. Second, the decision to reduce the reliance on public funding from national competent authorities, to be complemented with private sector money, can ensure that the ESAs will be adequately resourced to perform their existing tasks and to adapt more easily to future changes. Finally, targeted amendments to certain parts of the ESAs' powers can ensure that the ESAs can perform their tasks efficiently and effectively in the light of the experience gathered during the six years of their existence, as well as developments in the various financial markets and in EU level legislation. These targeted changes are also aligned with the stakeholders' view that a greater coordination role by the ESAs is warranted and that ESAs should make better use of their existing powers.

Regarding the net impact in term of costs to the various stakeholders and with the exception of granting direct powers to ESMA, the preferred options is expected to have limited impact to the private sector since their contribution to privately funded national authorities would go down as the national CAs will not be any longer required to pay into the ESAs' annual budget. The net impact on EU budget will be neutral – although the pre-funding from the EU budget will be needed in the first years after adoption of the proposal, the pre-funded amounts will be afterwards repaid to the EU budget upon entry into force of new funding mechanisms. Moreover, the net impact on national CAs will also be neutral as on the one hand national CAs would stop contributing to ESAs funding and on the other hand they should reduce (in a proportionate way) their needs for revenues to cover this expenditure. No impact, in terms of costs, is expected on consumers.

The impact assessment was submitted to the Regulatory Scrutiny Board ("RSB") on June 14 2017. The RSB gave a negative opinion on the impact assessment and made a number of recommendations for improvements. The document was revised accordingly and resubmitted on 19 July. On 27 July the RSB provided a positive opinion with reservations and listed considerations for improvement that have been taken into account to the extent feasible. The key changes introduced in the impact assessment to take into consideration the RSB's comments were the following:

- 1. The analysis of challenges for the supervisory systems related to the likely evolution of banking, insurance and securities markets over the next years should be completed. Various impacts of the UK's withdrawal from the EU on the core activities of the ESAs should be included.*

The impact assessment has been revised to more clearly explain that the policy initiative is for the sake of the EU Single Market and its integration and follows on the commitment announced in the 5 Presidents Report and the commitment expressed most recently in the reflection paper on the deepening of the EMU¹⁹, to move towards a genuine Financial Union, including a single supervisor for capital markets. The challenges that these documents set out for the EMU in general and its financial markets in particular provide the frame of reference for the impact assessment. A stronger focus has been put on the departure of the United Kingdom and its consequences throughout the main chapters of the Impact Assessment.

2. The assessment of costs and funding gaps of ESAs implied by the baseline and the various options should be completed.

More discussion and quantification has been provided of the resources needed for the ESAs to take on additional tasks (direct and indirect powers); the impact on resources resulting from governance modifications and the impact on resources from changes in the funding methodology for indirect supervision.

Costs between direct and indirect supervision and other activities have been differentiated and who is bearing the cost of preferred options has been better explained.

The discussion on net impacts (in terms of costs) of preferred options have been further developed to better address the issue of funding gaps and impact of overall supervisory costs for the sector.

In particular,

1. The overview cost table has been updated in line with the legislative financial fiche. We now have a very detailed estimation of costs and impact of both changes to the current ESAs framework and for the new direct powers.
2. The comparing options section in funding has been completely redrafted, as requested, to reflect the full costs and benefits of option 3 compared to the baseline and option 2 in particular.
3. The collection mechanism section has been completely redrafted to meet IA standards and added to the main text as this is part of the legislative proposal.

Regarding the net impact on the individual sectors, this could not be assessed exhaustively at this stage as it depends on the model used to finance national CAs within a Member State. For example, if market participants in a given Member State do not currently pay for their supervision (i.e., as the case of fully publicly funded national CAs) then, by definition, the allocation methodology of the preferred option would result in increased cost for these market participants at the benefit of taxpayers and national budgets in those Member States. At the same time, if market participants already pay for the ESAs via contributions to their national CAs' budgets then the net impact (incremental cost/benefit) would depend on the various methodologies that national CAs use to charge fees to individual entities as well as the weights they apply to entities for ESAs funding. In this case, in order to come up with a precise, reliable estimate of the incremental cost/benefit across the EU, a thorough comparative analysis is needed, which would require the involvement of those national CAs applying own methodologies on fees allocation. In any case though, it could be reasonably argued that establishing a level playing field across the Single market with a uniform fee setting mechanism among financial entities would ultimately benefit all market participants. In addition, it should be noted that the amounts required to fund ESAs should not, in principle, pose a threat to individual entities' operational models.

3. The comparison of options should be improved and the choice of the preferred option should be better supported by available evidence and analysis.

More detailed descriptions and further additions to the description of the options and analysis has been provided to the extent feasible, especially in the parts on powers and funding but also to the part on governance.

The discussion on powers is substantiated by further information and argumentation in the annex to the impact assessment. Any lack of evidence to support the preferred option in the power section can in some instances be explained by the fact that the policy direction in some cases have been motivated by a political decision.

The discussion on options in the governance section has been extensively explained and substantiated with examples and anecdotal evidence as well as underpinned by the results of evaluations made both by the European Parliament and the Commission. The nature of the defined problem in governance makes it very difficult to obtain hard core verifiable data.

In relation to funding, for example, the section on the preferred option 3 in funding has been improved to add additional assessment elements and to better clarify existing argumentation.

4. The evaluation should be more evidenced based and substantiated.

The evaluation has been revised to better distinguish between assessment and argumentation related to desktop work from opinions resulting from stakeholders consultations. Some more discussion has been added and where feasible more evidence has been included to improve the evaluation. There are limitations to the type of evidence used; some parts of the evaluation rely heavily on anecdotal evidence and stakeholder experiences with the ESAs. To compensate for that there has been an attempt to provide many examples from various different information sources, see e.g., the governance section. Other parts, such as funding, rely on more references and substantiated arguments.

The evaluation is also a retrospective exercise which is a backward looking exercise comparing the past years with the baseline scenario which is one in which the ESAs do not exist. The evaluation therefore by its very nature focuses less on the need for new, additional direct supervisory powers necessary for ESMA.

- Regulatory fitness and simplification

This proposal is not linked to a REFIT or simplification exercise. The aim of this proposal is to improve the ESAs framework and strengthen current supervisory arrangements. The proposed changes to the ESAs powers, governance framework and funding system should render EU level supervision more effective and efficient. An enhanced ESA framework will improve legal and economic certainty in addition to financial stability and risk containment. This is in line with the Commission's Better Regulation Agenda.

To the extent this proposal leads to the centralisation at EU level of some of the supervisory work with ESMA, the initiative removes the duplication of tasks among national authorities. This should create economies of scale at EU level and diminish the need for dedicated resources at national level. As far as financial institutions and financial market participants are concerned they should mainly benefit from a reduction in the administrative burden by the introduction of a single supervisor in certain areas.

- Fundamental rights

The proposal respects the fundamental rights and observes the principles recognised in particular by the Charter of Fundamental Rights of the European Union. In particular, it contributes to the objective of a high level of environmental protection in accordance with the principle of sustainable development as laid down in Article 37 of the Charter of Fundamental Rights of the European Union.²⁰

4. BUDGETARY IMPLICATIONS

The current funding of the ESAs relies on a general contribution from the EU General Budget (40%) and contributions from national competent authorities (60%). For ESMA, this distribution is slightly different, as entities that are directly supervised by ESMA (such as credit rating agencies and trade repositories) also pay supervisory fees to this Agency. This proposal will change the funding structure of the ESAs. The ESAs budget would now rely on three different sources of financing:

- Annual contributions paid by financial institutions that are indirectly supervised by the ESAs;
- Supervisory fees paid by entities that are directly supervised by the ESAs. This is especially relevant for ESMA, as the legislative proposal provides for the transfer of direct supervisory powers from the national competent authorities to ESMA (for some EU funds, data reporting services providers, some benchmarks administrators and some prospectuses);
- A balancing contribution from the EU that would not exceed 40% of the overall revenues of each agency. The amount of this balancing contribution will be set in advance in the Multiannual Financial Framework (MFF).

However, the new source of revenue for the ESAs (i.e., the annual contributions paid by the financial institutions indirectly supervised) will require the adoption by the Commission of a delegated act that will provide for: (i) a distribution of the total amount of the annual contributions among the different categories of financial institutions; and (ii) objective criteria allowing the calculation of the individual annual contribution to be paid by each financial institution. During the transitional period (i.e., until the adoption of the delegated act determining some parameters of the annual contributions), the current funding structure relying on contributions from the EU (40%) and from the national competent authorities (60%) will be maintained. This will have an impact on the EU budget as well as on the budget of the various national competent authorities.

The proposed changes to the governance structure, the indirect supervisory powers, the funding system and the direct supervisory powers of the ESAs will require new resources. EBA, EIOPA and ESMA will respectively require 29, 35 and 156 additional full-time employees when the different provisions of the proposal will enter into application. It should be noted that for ESMA, most of those additional FTEs relate to direct supervisory tasks (97 out of 156). The ESAs will also incur additional IT costs (estimated at EUR 10.2 million for the period 2019-2020) and translation costs (estimated at EUR 1.8 million for the period 2019-2020).

It should be noted that any budgetary demands from the ESAs will still be subject to all accountability and audit mechanisms put in place in the ESA Regulations, for the preparation, adoption and execution of their annual budgets. Moreover, the annual decision on the EU balancing contribution to the ESAs and their establishment plans (e.g. decision on the staffing level) would still be authorised by the Parliament and the Council, and subject to discharge from the Parliament on a recommendation from the Council.

The financial and budgetary impact of this proposal is explained in detail in the legislative financial statement annexed to this proposal.

It should be noted that the information provided in the legislative financial statement is without prejudice to the post-2020 MFF proposal to be presented by May 2018. It should also be noted in this context that while the headcount necessary for direct supervision will depend over time on the development of the number and size of capital markets participants to be supervised, the respective expenditure will in principle be funded by fees to be collected from those market participants.

THE FINANCIAL AND BUDGETARY IMPACT OF THIS PROPOSAL IS EXPLAINED IN DETAIL IN THE LEGISLATIVE FINANCIAL STATEMENT ANNEXED TO THIS PROPOSAL.

5. OTHER ELEMENTS

- Implementation plans and monitoring, evaluation and reporting arrangements

The implementation of this Regulation will be reviewed in two ways: as part of the regular reviews of the ESAs every three years and as part of the reviews of the sectoral Regulations, in most cases two or three years after the respective date of application.

- Detailed explanation of the specific provisions of the proposal

- (1) Amendments to the ESAs Regulations²¹

According to the 11th recital of the ESAs Regulations, the ESAs act with a view to improving the functioning of the internal market, in particular by ensuring a high, effective and consistent level of regulation and supervision.

²¹ Regulation (EU) No 1093/2010 establishing a European Supervisory Authority (European Banking Authority); Regulation (EU) No 1094/2010 establishing a European Supervisory Authority (European Insurance and Occupational Pensions Authority); Regulation (EU) No 1095/2010 establishing a European Supervisory Authority (European Securities and Markets Authority).

According to Article 1(2) of the ESAs Regulations, the Authorities act within the scope of the acts referred to therein, i.e., in a proportionate framework set and updated regularly by the Union legislator.

Changes to the EBA Regulation, to the EIOPA Regulation and to the ESMA Regulation are dealt with in Articles 1, 2 and 3 respectively of the Regulation proposed.

(a) Powers

The changes highlighted below pertain to the general powers of ESAs that this proposal enhances. New direct supervisory powers entrusted with ESMA are dealt with in sections 2 to 5.

New areas of activities and focus

Article 1 of the ESA Regulations list acts that fall within the remit of the ESAs. Article 1 is constructed in a way which implies that only acts adopted prior to the establishment of the ESAs and acts that do not foresee tasks for the ESAs need to be listed. All acts adopted subsequent to the ESA Regulations, including amendments and acts based on legal instruments falling within the remit of the ESAs, as well as acts that foresee tasks for the ESAs, fall automatically within the remit of the ESAs and do not have to be listed in Article 1 to fall within the remit of the ESAs.

Amendments proposed in respect of Article 1 of each of the ESA Regulations are as follows: it is proposed to bring within the scope of the EBA Regulation the consumer credit directive 2008/48 and the payment accounts Directive 2014/92/; to bring within the scope of the EIOPA Regulation the motor insurance directive 2009/103; and to bring the Accounting Directive 2013/34 within the scope of the ESMA Regulation.

Amendments to Article 4 of the EBA Regulation complement the list of definitions to be used for the purpose of the application of the Regulations. More specifically, it changes the definition of "financial institution" to ensure that all entities covered by relevant sector legislation come under EBA's remit. The new definition of "competent authorities" proposed ensures that all relevant supervisors and authorities are covered, even if not defined as "competent authorities," in the applicable legislation.

It is proposed to amend Article 8 of the EIOPA and ESMA Regulations to include the task to develop and maintain up to date a Union supervisory handbook on the supervision of financial institutions in the Union as a whole. This aligns the two Regulations with the EBA Regulation. Moreover, as regards the EBA, it is proposed that it will be tasked with developing and maintaining up to date a Union resolution handbook on the resolution of financial institutions in the Union as a whole.

Amendments to Articles 8 and 9 of the ESA Regulations specify that the ESAs should contribute to foster consumer protection. All three ESAs will also be under an obligation to take account of technological innovation and environmental, social and governance related factors when carrying out their tasks. In the case of EIOPA and ESMA it has moreover been specified that when carrying out their tasks, the Better Regulation principles should apply. This aligns those Regulations with that of the EBA Regulation. Finally, it has been added that tasks should include undertaking in-depth thematic reviews of market conduct, building a common understanding of markets practices, identifying potential problems and analysing their impact, as well as developing retail risk indicators for the timely identification of potential causes of consumer detriment.

Technological innovation

Article 8(1a) explicitly requires the ESAs, when carrying out their tasks under the ESA Regulations, to take account of technological innovation while carrying out their tasks in accordance with this Regulation. Technological innovation contributes to better access and more convenience. It lowers operational costs and barriers to entry and such innovations should be supported by the ESAs. Realising the potential of technological innovation requires also that integrity is assured in terms of data use, orderly and fair markets, avoiding the use of the financial system for illicit purposes and cybersecurity.

Moreover, amendments to Article 29 of the ESA Regulations reinforce the coordination role of the ESAs regarding the entry into the market of innovative firms and services, in particular through the exchange of information between national supervisors and ESAs.

Environmental, social and governance factors

All the three ESAs will be under an obligation to take account of risks related to environmental, social and governance factors when carrying out their tasks. This will also enable the ESAs to monitor how financial institutions identify, report, and address risks that environmental, social and governance factors may pose to financial stability, thereby rendering financial market activities more consistent with sustainable objectives.

The ESAs can also provide guidance on how sustainability considerations can be effectively embodied in relevant EU financial legislation, and promote coherent implementation of these provisions upon adoption.

Guidelines and Recommendations

While the power to develop guidelines and recommendations has proven an important and successful tool of supervisory convergence, stakeholders have highlighted the need to remain within the remit of competence of the ESAs and to ensure a full assessment of costs and benefits when developing such instruments. Amendments to Article 16 of the ESA Regulations imply that the carrying out of cost-benefit-analyses must be considered the rule. The amendments also aim at ensuring that if a majority of the members of the relevant ESA Stakeholder Groups consider that the ESAs have exceeded their competences when issuing guidelines or recommendations to issue an opinion to the Commission. In such a case the Commission shall assess the scope of the guidelines and may require the relevant ESA to withdraw the guidelines concerned.

In addition, the amendments in these Articles foresee the possibility for the ESAs to address guidelines to the authorities that are not defined as competent authorities under the ESA Regulations but that are empowered to ensure the application of the legislation under ESAs' remit in order to establish consistent, efficient and effective supervisory practices within the ESFS.

Breach of Union law

The Commission also proposes amendments to Article 17 of the ESA Regulations in relation to breaches of Union law. For the power of the ESAs to pursue breaches of law to be effective, it has proven essential that the ESAs have access to all relevant information. The amendments ensure that in the context of breach of EU law investigations the ESAs will be able to address a duly justified and reasoned request for information directly to other competent authorities or relevant financial institutions/financial market participants. In the event the ESAs decide to request information directly from the relevant financial institution/financial market participant, the national competent authority shall be informed and assist the ESAs in collecting the requested information. Moreover, it should be emphasised that the Executive Board will be responsible for breaches of law (see below), which will further enhance the effectiveness of this tool.

Settlement of disagreements

Amendments are proposed to Article 19 of the ESA Regulations in relation to the settlement of disagreements between competent authorities. The objective is to ensure that, when such disagreements exist, the ESAs may act and intervene decisively. The amendments clarify that settlements of disagreements between the competent authorities in cross-border situations can be triggered also on the ESAs' own initiative where on the basis of objective criteria a disagreement can be determined between competent authorities. In the latter case, a disagreement shall be presumed if legislation under the remit of the ESA requires a joint decision to be taken but such a decision is not taken within the time limit prescribed in the relevant legislation. In this context, the amendments also introduce an obligation for competent authorities to notify the ESAs when an agreement has not been reached. Moreover, the Executive Board will be responsible for dispute settlement (see below) which will enhance the effectiveness of this tool.

Supervisory convergence and coordination

Amendments to Article 29 of the EIOPA and ESMA Regulations specify that those two ESAs should develop and maintain an up to date supervisory handbook to further develop a common supervisory culture across supervisory authorities. This is based on the powers already existing for the EBA. In the area of banking, amendments specify that the EBA should develop a similar handbook in the area of resolution.

Under the proposed new Article 29a the ESAs are given increased general coordination powers to promote convergence of day-to-day supervision by all competent authorities much more significantly and efficiently across the EU. The ESAs will be required to set EU-wide priorities for supervision in the form of a 'Strategic Supervisory Plan' against which all competent authorities will be assessed. Competent authorities will be required to draw up annual work programs in line with the Strategic Plan. This will permit all three ESAs to ensure convergence with respect to the prudential supervision of financial institutions which are primarily active in Member States other than those where they are established and supervised; this will be particularly important for EIOPA.

This proposal also amends the current Article 30 of the ESA Regulations in relation to peer reviews. To enhance the value added of these reviews and to insure impartiality the reviews will no longer be "peer" reviews but "independent" reviews under the responsibility of the new Executive Board. The ESAs shall produce a report setting out the results of the review and the competent authorities shall make every effort to comply with any guidelines and recommendations that the ESAs may take as follow-up measures of the peer review.

This proposal contains a new Article 31a which aims at strengthening the coordination function of the ESAs to ensure that the competent authorities effectively supervise outsourcing, delegation and risk transfer arrangements in third countries. Supervisory practices vary from one Member States to another. The ESAs shall monitor those arrangements both ex ante and on an on-going basis.

Coordination role for ESMA in relation to market abuse investigations

Where operators conduct activities that fall under ESMA's remit and that have a strong cross-border element, ESMA may be best placed to initiate and coordinate investigations. A proposed new Article 31b entrusts ESMA with an enhanced coordination role in recommending the competent authorities to initiate investigations and facilitating the exchange of information relevant for those investigations, where ESMA has reasonable grounds to suspect that activity with significant cross-border effects is taking place that threatens the orderly functioning and integrity of financial markets or the financial stability in the Union. For this purpose, ESMA shall maintain a data storage facility to collect from, and disseminate between, competent authorities, all relevant information.

Stress testing

Amendments to Article 32 of the ESA Regulations achieve two things. First, they align the EIOPA and the ESMA Regulation with the EBA Regulation on stress testing. Second, to ensure transparency on the stress tests, this proposal allows for the publication of the results of the individual financial institutions or financial market participants. It also clarifies that professional secrecy obligations of competent authorities shall not prevent them from transmitting stress test outcomes to the ESAs for the purpose of publication. The second amendment applies to all three ESAs. In addition, in order to contribute to decisions regarding stress tests being taken in a perspective that takes full account of the single market, such decisions, including the methodologies and approaches to communication of outcomes of stress tests, are proposed to be conferred upon the new Executive Board in all three ESAs.

Third-country equivalence

Third country equivalence is an important tool to allow international market integration while ensuring effective supervision (see the Commission's staff working document on equivalence decisions in financial services policy²²). Amendments to Article 33 of the ESA Regulations confirm that the ESAs shall assist the Commission in preparing equivalence decision when requested by the Commission. Once such decisions have been taken, it is important to ensure that they are adjusted to new developments. The amendments therefore also entrust the ESAs with the responsibility for monitoring on an on-going basis the regulatory and supervisory developments as well as enforcement practices in third countries on which the Commission has taken an equivalence decision and submit a confidential report on their findings to the Commission on an annual basis. For this purpose, the ESAs shall also develop administrative arrangements with third countries.

Collection of information

²² "EU equivalence decisions in financial services policy: an assessment", SWD(2017)102 final.

Access to all relevant information is the basis for the ESAs to carry out their activities in an effective way. Information is normally provided by the national supervisory authorities which are closest to the financial markets and institutions but as a last resort, the ESAs can address requests for information directly to a financial institution or a market participant. For example, where a national competent authority does not or cannot provide such information in a timely fashion. It is appropriate to ensure that the ESAs can get access to information that it needs for its tasks. Therefore this proposal creates a mechanism to strengthen the effective enforcement of the ESA's right to collect information (see new Articles 35 to 35h of the ESA Regulations). The ESAs will have at their disposal the necessary means to ensure compliance with a request or decision to submit information. The amendments entrust the ESAs with the power to impose fines and penalty payments of an administrative nature, under the review by the Court of Justice, and subject to the right for the entity to be heard, when a financial institution and/or financial market participant fail to provide adequate information.

Internal models in the insurance sector

A new, proposed Article 21a of the EIOPA Regulation reinforces EIOPA's role to ensure supervisory convergence on internal models. Divergence in the supervision and approval of internal models may lead to inconsistencies, and creates an un-level playing field. EIOPA will be able to obtain in a timely way all relevant information upon its request and issue opinions to the relevant competent authorities. Where there are disagreements between competent authorities with respect to group internal models, EIOPA will also be able to assist the authorities in reaching an agreement under Article 19 of the Founding Regulation, either at its own initiative, on the request of one or more of the competent authorities, or in certain circumstances on the request of the group concerned.

Other provisions

Amendments to Article 37 of the ESA Regulations reinforce the consultative role of ESA's Stakeholder Groups whose opinions and advice are essential to the day-to-day work of ESAs. Where the members of the Stakeholder Group cannot reach a common opinion or advice, the members representing one group of stakeholders can submit a separate opinion or advice.

Amendments to Article 39 of the ESA Regulation specify that the decisions of the ESAs, save for the investigatory decisions taken for failure to transmit adequate information in relation to a request for information, shall be made public together with a summary of the decision outlining the reasons of the decision.

(b) Governance

This proposal envisages a more effective governance structure for the ESAs by introducing an independent Executive Board with full-time members, replacing the current Management Board (Articles 45 and 47 of the ESA Regulations) and to adjust the composition of the Board of Supervisor (Articles 40 of the ESA Regulations). This proposal clarifies the respective competences of these two boards (Articles 43 and 47). In addition, the standing and powers of the Chairperson will be enhanced (Article 48).

The Executive Board

The main function of the Executive Board will be to prepare decisions to be taken by the Board of Supervisors. This should ensure that the decision making within the Board of Supervisors is quicker and more streamlined. This will also contribute to a more EU oriented approach in the decision making. In order to reflect the specific situation in the banking sector, where a majority of Member States participates in the Banking Union, it is explicitly required that the EBA Executive Board shall be balanced and proportionate and shall reflect the Union as a whole.

The Executive Board will consist of the Chairperson and a number of full-time members. The number will differ between ESMA on the one hand and EBA and EIOPA on the other hand as the proposal is entrusting ESMA with a significant number of additional tasks in different areas compared to the other two ESAs. The full-time members shall be appointed on the basis of an open call for candidates organised by the Commission. The Commission will shortlist the candidates and submit it the European Parliament for approval. Following the approval of the shortlist, the Council shall appoint the full time members by way of a decision. The procedure of dismissal mirrors the one on appointment and leaves the final decision to the Council. One of the permanent members will assume the tasks of the current Executive Director whose specific position will be eliminated.

The Executive Board will retain the role of the Management Board in relation to the preparation of the ESAs work programs and budget.

The Executive Board will be attributed decision making powers in a number of areas. For example, vis-a-vis individual, competent authorities in relation to certain matters of a non-regulatory nature such as in relation to, dispute settlements, breach of Union law matters and independent reviews. This should ensure effective, impartial and EU-oriented decisions. The Executive Board will also be in charge of setting out supervisory priorities for competent authorities in a new "Strategic Supervisory plan". They will check the consistency of the work programmes of competent authorities with EU priorities and review their implementation. The Executive Board will furthermore be in charge of monitoring delegation, outsourcing and risk transfer arrangements to non-EU countries to ensure that inherent risks are addressed. It will decide on stress tests and approaches to communication on the outcomes of stress tests. Finally, the Executive Board will also be in charge of decisions in relation to requests for information. The members of the Executive Board will have one vote each and the Chairperson a casting vote. The proposed version of Article 47 sets out the tasks of the Executive Board.

The amendments also replace the reference to the Management Board with the Executive Board. In addition, the position of the Executive Director will be deleted. His/her responsibilities will be assumed by one of the full time members of the Executive.

The Board of Supervisors

The Board of Supervisors remains as the main body of the ESAs in charge of its overall guidance and decision making. However, proposed amendments to Article 40 change the composition of the Board of Supervisors to include the full time members of the Executive Board but without voting rights. The amendments also ensure the presence of consumer protection authorities where relevant.

Each voting member in the Board of Supervisors shall have one vote. Because decisions on certain tasks of a non-regulatory nature (dispute settlements, breach of Union law and independent reviews) will be taken by the Executive Board the current rules on decision making are amended.

Despite the fact that with the future departure of the United Kingdom, the number and weight of Member States not participating in the Banking Union will go down, and further Member States may join the Banking Union, it is proposed to keep the double majority voting system for measures and decisions adopted by EBA Board of Supervisors that was introduced in 2013 as part of the "Banking Union" package as a safeguard to ensure that EBA decisions reflect the specific situation both of Member States participating in the Banking Union and other Member States. The Board of Supervisor will therefore continue to take decisions on the basis of a qualified majority of its members, which should include at least a simple majority of the national competent authorities participating in the Banking Union and a simple majority of national competent authorities that are not participating in the Banking Union.

However, the current system makes decision-making in the EBA excessively burdensome as decisions cannot be taken even in cases where no majority of non-participating Member States considers the vote sufficiently important to be present. To ensure that the EBA can continue to take decisions in an effective manner while fully upholding the safeguards for non-participating Member States as long as they are present in the vote, current voting rules should be modified to ensure that votes would not have to be postponed in case of absences. This will also create clear incentives for national competent authorities to be present at EBA meetings and thereby provide a greater legitimacy for decisions taken in the meetings. The amendment therefore clarifies that a decision would need to be supported by a simple majority of national competent authorities from non-participating Member States present at the vote and of national competent authorities from participating Member States present at the vote.

Division of competences between the two Boards

Amendments to Articles 43 and 47 of the ESA Regulations clarify the basic principle of division of competences between the Board of Supervisors and the Executive Board. The Board of Supervisors is in charge of every decision, referred to in the Regulation, save as otherwise foreseen (see above in relation to the Executive Board). In situations where ESMA will exercise powers related to direct supervision, its Board of Supervisors will only be able to reject a proposal for a decision from the Executive Board by a majority of thirds. In such a case the draft must be reviewed by the Executive Board (amendments to Article 44 of the ESMA Regulation).

The Board of Supervisors shall be released of its disciplinary authority over the Chairperson because the former will not be competent to appoint him (see below).

Amendments to Article 41 and a new Article 45b allow both the Board of Supervisors and the Executive Board to establish internal committees for specific tasks. The setting up of panels is abolished.

The Chairperson

The Chairperson is a key representative of the ESA. The standing and powers of the Chairperson will therefore be enhanced to increase his/her statutory authority.

Amendments to Article 48 of the ESA Regulations clarify the appointment procedure for the Chairperson. He/she shall be appointed on the basis of an open call for candidates organised by the Commission. The Commission will shortlist the candidates and submit it the European Parliament for approval. Following the approval of the shortlist by the European Parliament, the Council shall appoint the full time members with a decision taken by qualified majority. The procedure of dismissal mirrors the one on appointment and leaves the final decision to the Council. This should raise the legitimacy and authority of the Chairperson. The Chairperson will also get a casting vote in the Executive Board.

Other provisions

The remit of action of the Joint Committee has been extended to include consumer and investor protection issues through amendments to Article 54 of the ESA Regulations.

(c) Financial provisions

To ensure that the ESAs' funding system is sustainable and commensurate with the tasks they perform and are expected to perform in the future, and to ensure that the funding system links fees and contributions to the ESAs' activities in a proportionate way, it is proposed to revise the current funding system. The proposed system retains the public funding element currently provided by the EU and combines it with contributions from domestic industry and other market participants, replacing current contributions from the national competent authorities. The legal basis for setting up the ESAs (Article 114 TFEU) allows amending the funding system and collecting contributions from the industry.

The current fixed distribution between contributions from the EU General Budget and contributions from national competent authorities (40%/60%) would be eliminated.

The amendments provide that the revenue of the ESAs will now stem from three main sources:

The amendments to Article 62 define a balancing contribution from the Union. The proposed maximum EU annual contribution, as set in advance in the Multiannual Financial Framework (MFF), will cover up to 40% of the ESAs' annual budget. This will respect constraints of the EU Budget. This will also remove the currently applied fixed distribution (40%/60%) that can limit the ability of the ESAs to increase their other sources of revenues. To this extent, for each subsequent MFF preparation, the ESAs should provide the Commission with a medium-term projection (covering at least 5 years) of their anticipated budgetary needs according to the methodologies they apply for preparing their annual budgetary proposals.

Second, a new source of revenue from the private sector has been added: annual contributions from financial institutions. This source of revenue will replace current mandatory contributions from the national competent authorities to the ESAs budget. The annual contributions will be paid by the financial institutions that are indirectly supervised by the ESAs and falling into the scope of Article 1(2) of the Founding Regulations. The amendments provide that the amount of the annual contributions from financial institutions should be based on the estimated workload that the Authority is planning to carry out for each category of market participants under the Founding Regulations and the sectoral legislation. The amendments indicate that those annual contributions will be collected by national authorities designated by Member States. The amendments also provides for a delegated act that will establish how the total amount of annual contributions are shared among the different categories of financial institutions, based on the activity required by each category of them. For each category of financial institutions, the delegated act will also establish appropriate and objective criteria to calculate the actual annual contribution to be paid. Those criteria should be based on the size of the financial institutions in order to reflect their importance in the market. Finally, the delegated act will establish de minimis thresholds under which small financial institutions do not pay financial contributions or it will set minimum contributions.

Third, the three Regulations keep unchanged the current provisions that allow the three ESAs to receive fees from entities that are subject to direct supervision. This provision is currently particularly important for ESMA.

Under this new funding mechanism, the entities will not be charged twice for the same service. While the entities that are directly supervised by the ESAs will pay supervisory fees as foreseen by sectoral legislation, other financial institutions (directly supervised by national competent authorities and indirectly supervised by the ESAs) will pay a financial contribution.

The amendments also provides for two complementary sources of revenues. The amendments introduce a possibility for any voluntary financial contributions from Member States and observers, on the condition that such a contribution does not compromise the independence and impartiality of the ESAs. For instance, those voluntary contributions can finance delegations of tasks and responsibilities from national competent authorities to the ESAs. The amendments also introduce a possibility for ESAs to collect charges for publications, training and for any other services requested by national competent authorities.

(d) General Provisions

Amendments to Article 70 of the ESA Regulations extend the obligation of professional secrecy to non-staff of the Authorities (i.e., individuals who provide any service, directly or indirectly, permanently or occasionally, relating to the tasks of the Authority, including officials and other persons authorised by the Executive Board and the Board of Supervisors or appointed by the competent authorities for that purpose). The same requirements for professional secrecy shall also apply to observers who attend the meetings of the Executive Board and the Board of Supervisors who take part in the activities of the Authority. This amendment should ensure that persons that are currently not covered by the obligations of professional secrecy set out in Article 70 of the ESA's Regulations and that participate in board meetings, working groups, sub-committees, panels and expert networks are covered by rules on professional secrecy and confidentiality.

Regulations (EC) 1093/2010, 1094/2010 and 1095/2010 as well as sectoral financial services legislation require the ESAs to seek effective administrative arrangements, involving the exchange of information with third-country supervisors. The need for effective cooperation and information exchange should become all the more important when, pursuant to this amending Regulation, some of the ESAs assume additional, broader responsibilities in relation to the supervision of non-EU entities and activities. Where, in this context, the ESAs process personal data, including by transferring such data outside the Union, they are bound by the requirements of Regulation (EU) No 2018/XXX (Data Protection Regulation for EU institutions and Bodies). In the absence of an adequacy decision or of appropriate safeguards, for example provided for in administrative arrangements within the meaning of Article 49(3) of the Data Protection Regulation for EU institutions and Bodies, the ESAs may exchange personal data with third-country authorities in accordance with and under the conditions of the public interest derogation as set out in Article 51(1)(d) thereof, which notably applies to cases of international data exchange between financial supervisory authorities.

- (2) Article 4, Article 5 and Article 7 respectively deal with changes to Regulation (EU) No 345/2013 (EuVECA) and Regulation (EU) 346/2013 (EuSEF) and Regulation (EU) 2015/760 (ELTIF).

Regulation (EU) No 345/2013 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 17 April 2013 on European venture capital funds²³ (EuVECA) and Regulation (EU) 346/2013 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 17 April 2013 on European social entrepreneurship funds²⁴ (EuSEF) introduced specialised fund structures to make it easier for market participants to raise and invest capital in innovative small and medium-sized enterprises ("SMEs") and social undertakings throughout Europe. Uniform requirements and conditions were laid down for managers of collective investment undertakings that wish to use the designations 'EuVECA' or 'EuSEF' in relation to the marketing of qualifying venture capital or social entrepreneurship funds. Regulation (EU) 2015/760 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 29 April 2015 on European long-term investment funds²⁵ introduced another fund vehicle 'ELTIF' which targets investments in real economy, such as infrastructure project, with an enhanced focus on longer term investing. Regulation (EU) 2015/760 lays down uniform requirements that long-term funds must comply with in order to be authorised as an 'ELTIF'.

EuVECA, EuSEF and ELTIF are harmonised collective investment funds. Regulation (EU) No 345/2013, Regulation (EU) 346/2013 and Regulation (EU) 2015/760 govern qualifying investments, qualifying portfolio undertakings, concentration rules, and eligible investors. The rules define also the supervisory powers, including requirements for registrations and authorizations, ongoing supervision and withdrawals of registrations or authorisations.

The main objectives of Regulation (EU) No 345/2013, Regulation (EU) No 346/2013 and Regulation (EU) 2015/760 are boosting jobs and growth, SME financing, social and long-term investments, as well as promoting an EU investment culture. However, the divergent use by national competent authorities of their discretion, their divergent administrative practices, and the differences in supervisory cultures and performance remain despite the harmonisation achieved by the three Regulations. Those divergences hinder the necessary level playing field among managers of qualifying venture capital funds, qualifying social entrepreneurship funds and long-term investment funds in different Member States increasing, at the same time, the transaction and operational costs of those managers. The appointment of a single EU supervisor will support the objectives of those Regulations as it will further facilitate the integration, the development and marketing of such fund structures across borders.

This proposal aims at further streamlining the administrative process governing authorisation/registration of these EU label funds in the Union as well as to strengthen level playing field by centralising their supervision regardless of where a fund is established or marketed. A uniform application of the rules would allow managers to lower transaction and operational costs and strengthen investor choice.

ESMA is entrusted with the functions of authorisation/registration and supervision of these EU funds and their managers, thus increasing efficiency of these administrative processes. Managers of such funds will be required to apply for authorisation/registration to a single competent authority – ESMA – which will also be responsible for ensuring that the rules laid down in those Regulations are consistently applied. Therefore, targeted changes are introduced to transfer the powers of the national competent authorities to ESMA.

²⁴ Regulation (EU) No 346/2013 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 17 April 2013 on European social entrepreneurship funds (OJ L 115, 25.4.2013, p. 18).

²⁵ Regulation (EU) 2015/760 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 29 April 2015 on European long-term investment funds (OJ L 123, 19.5.2015, p. 98–121).

These EU funds are governed by directly applicable regulations that already offer a set of rules that ESMA will enforce.

As regards EuVECA and EuSEF funds which exceed thresholds referred to in point (b) of Article 3(2) of the AIFMD Directive 2011/61/EU and are therefore managed by alternative investment fund managers authorised under this Directive, ESMA will also be the competent authority. ESMA will ensure that these managers comply, next to sector specific provisions of the EuVECA or EuSEF Regulations enumerated in their Articles 2(2), with the national law implementing the AIFMD in the Member State of the managers' establishment. This approach aims at ensuring supervisory consistency and at alleviating the administrative burden that would result if those entities were to be supervised simultaneously by ESMA and national competent authorities with respect to the same fund.

This proposal, where necessary, lays down several empowerments specifying the requirements under the three Regulations, so that the content of certain legal obligations and the scope of ESMA's discretion are sufficiently precise to ensure the degree of harmonisation sought.

Regulation (EU) No 345/2013 and Regulation (EU) 346/2013 have been recently reviewed²⁶ with respect to, in particular, specific fund rules, changes to the scope or eligible investments. Supervisory aspects were not subject to that review. The proposal for a Regulation amending the two Regulations was agreed by the co-legislators and approved by the European Parliament²⁷. While the final adoption of that Proposal by the Council and its publication in the Official Journal of the European Union are still pending, it is appropriate to take the texts of the two Regulations with the amendments agreed by the co-legislators as a reference point for the purposes of this Proposal. Should any changes to the agreed amendments to the two Regulations occur in the course of the adoption process due to be finalised over the coming days, the Commission stands ready to modify this Proposal to ensure its alignment with such changes.

In accordance with Article 11, Articles 4 to 6 enter into application 36 months after the Regulation's entry into force so that there is sufficient time to develop and adopt the delegated and implementing acts envisaged therein. The proposal also lays down transitional measures for the transfer of competencies and duties from national competent authorities to ESMA.

(3) Amendments to Regulation (EU) No 600/2014 (MIFIR – data reporting service providers)

Article 6 introduces the following amendments:

²⁶ Proposal for a Regulation the European Parliament and of the Council amending Regulation (EU) No 345/2013 on European venture capital funds and Regulation (EU) No 346/2013 on European social entrepreneurship funds, COM/2016/0461 final.

²⁷ Regulation (EU) 2017/...of the European Parliament and of the Council of amending Regulation (EU) No 345/2013 on European venture capital funds and Regulation (EU) No 346/2013 on European social entrepreneurship funds, as provisionally agreed with the European Parliament, 27 June 2017,2016/0221/COD.

- adds the authorisation and supervision of data reporting service providers to the scope of Regulation (EU) No 600/2014 (MiFIR) together with direct data gathering powers for the purposes of reporting and transparency calculations;
- add the three different types of data reporting service providers to the definitions in MiFIR;
- empowers ESMA to request information it requires for its supervisory tasks;
- establishes ESMA as the supervisor of data reporting service providers;
- defines the powers and competences ESMA should have in exercising its role as competent authority;
- imposes reporting requirements for the Commission on the functioning of the consolidated tape;
- specifies the transfer of competences from national competent authorities to ESMA.

This Proposal also makes it explicit that MiFIR intervention powers also cover the managers of UCITS²⁸ and Alternative Investment Funds (AIFs)²⁹ where that activity is carried out directly by their managers.

More specifically, Article 40 of MiFIR already grants ESMA with temporary intervention powers, which allow ESMA under certain conditions, to temporarily prohibit or restrict in the Union the marketing, distribution or sale of certain financial instruments or financial instruments with certain specified features, or a type of financial activity or practice. These product intervention powers apply to investment firms and credit institutions involved in marketing, distribution or sale of financial instruments, including units in collective investment undertakings. Since units in collective investment undertakings may also be directly marketed, distributed or sold by management companies of undertakings for collective investment in transferable securities (UCITS) and UCITS investment companies authorised in accordance with Directive 2009/65/EC and managers of alternative investment funds (AIFMs) authorised in accordance with Directive 2011/61/EU, it is necessary to make it explicit that the above-mentioned product intervention powers under MiFIR also apply to management companies of UCITS and UCITS investment companies, as well as to AIFMs under specific circumstances.

A proposal for a Directive amending Directive 2014/65/EU (MiFID II) aims to eliminate data reporting service providers from the scope of Directive 2014/65/EU.

(4) Amendments to Regulation (EU) 2016/1011 (Benchmarks).

Article 8 of this Regulation amends Regulation (EU) 2016/1011 (BMR). Paragraph 11 establishes ESMA as competent authority for administrators of critical benchmarks and of all benchmarks that are used in the Union but administered outside. Paragraphs 4, 5, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17 and 19 are technical adjustments reflecting this designation, with paragraph 4 providing for the Commission to designate benchmarks which serve as reference for a volume over EUR 500 billion as critical. Paragraph 18 defines the powers and competences ESMA should have in exercising its role as competent authority.

²⁸ Directive 2009/65/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 13 July 2009 on the coordination of laws, regulations and administrative provisions relating to undertakings for collective investment in transferable securities (UCITS)

Paragraph 10 determines that ESMA should authorise administrators of critical benchmarks. Paragraph 16 abolishes the colleges of supervisors for critical benchmarks as ESMA as the new supervisor for these benchmarks will have a Union-wide perspective in the assessment of risks etc.

Paragraphs 8 and 9 establish ESMA as the competent authority for the recognition and the approval of endorsements of third country administrators and benchmarks, respectively.

Paragraphs 1, 2, 3 and 6 empower the Commission to further specify certain provisions of Regulation (EU) 2016/1011 to ensure that ESMA can directly apply the respective provisions.

Finally, the amendments to Article 30 of the Regulation (EU) 2016/1011 ensure that equivalence with Regulation (EU) 2016/1011 by third countries is monitored on an ongoing basis. For the purpose of appropriate exchange of information and cooperation in the supervision of benchmark administrators in third-countries, ESMA will need to conclude cooperation agreements with third country supervisors. However, where a third country is included on the list of jurisdictions which are declared as having strategic deficiencies in their national anti-money laundering and countering the financing of terrorism regimes that pose significant threats to the financial system of the Union, ESMA will not be permitted to conclude such a cooperation agreement with the supervisors of that third country.

(5) Amendments to Regulation (EU) 2017/1129 (Prospectus)

Article 9 of this Regulation amends Regulation (EU) 2017/1129 so that the supervision of certain types of prospectuses is transferred to ESMA.

The key amendment is featured in Paragraph 10 which confers on ESMA the role of "competent authority of the home Member State" for four categories of prospectuses. For these prospectuses, the tasks of scrutiny and approval, as well as the processing of passport notifications, are conferred on ESMA. A "reading rule" is established to apply the provisions of the Prospectus Regulation to the situations where ESMA assumes direct supervision. Paragraph 1 introduces a number of definitions as regards specialist issuers. Paragraph 4 also transfers to ESMA the power to supervise the advertisements related to those prospectuses subject to its approval, in lieu of the competent authorities of host Member States. While the actual exercise by ESMA of a control over the compliance of those advertisements remains optional, it will become mandatory should a competent authority formally request ESMA to make use of such controlling power when prospectuses approved by ESMA are used for an offer or admission to trading in its jurisdiction.

Paragraphs 2, 3, 4, 6, 8, 11 and 12 introduce drafting clarifications to account for the new role of ESMA, in those situations where the "reading rule" of Paragraph 10 might be insufficient to achieve legal clarity (language regime, cooperation agreements, notifications).

Paragraph 7 clarifies and enhances the functioning of the equivalence regime for prospectuses drawn up according to the national rules of a third country. Where such rules are declared equivalent by the Commission in an implementing decision, a third country prospectus which is already approved by the third country supervisor will only be filed with ESMA and ESMA will send a certificate of filing (instead of a certificate of approval, cf. point (b) of paragraph 5) to the competent authority of each host Member State where such "equivalent" third country prospectus is notified. For the purpose of supervising prospectuses from third-country issuers, ESMA will need to conclude cooperation agreements with third country supervisors. However, where a third country is included in the list of jurisdictions which are declared as having strategic deficiencies in their national anti-money laundering and countering the financing of terrorism regimes that pose significant threats to the financial system of the Union, ESMA will not be permitted to conclude such a cooperation agreement with the supervisors of that third country (cf. point (a) of paragraph 9). Point (a) of paragraph 5 corrects an omission in Article 25(4) of Regulation (EU) 2017/1129 by clarifying that ESMA must also be communicated electronically by competent authorities all final terms of base prospectuses after those final terms are filed, even where the base prospectus concerned is not passported to any host Member State, in line with what was required under Directive 2003/71/EC.

Paragraph 13 corrects an error in Regulation (EU) 2017/1129 by aligning the date by which Member States are required to notify their sanctioning rules to the Commission and to ESMA, with the date, set out in Article 49(3) of the Regulation, by which they are required to comply with Chapter VIII of the Regulation

Paragraph 14 introduces a new chapter setting out the powers and competences of ESMA which are necessary for the supervision and enforcement of the Prospectus Regulation, including powers to impose pecuniary fines and periodic penalty payments

THE EUROPEAN PARLIAMENT AND THE COUNCIL OF THE EUROPEAN UNION,

Having regard to the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union, and in particular Article 114 thereof,

Having regard to the proposal from the European Commission,

After transmission of the draft legislative act to the national parliaments,

Having regard to the opinion of the European Central Bank³⁰,

Having regard to the opinion of the European Economic and Social Committee³¹,

Acting in accordance with the ordinary legislative procedure³²,

Whereas:

- (1) Following the financial crisis and the recommendations of a group of high level experts led by Jacques de Larosière, the the Union has made important progress in creating not only stronger, but also more harmonised rules for the financial markets in the form of the Single Rule Book. The Union has also set up the European System of Financial Supervision ("ESFS"), built on a two-pillar system which combines micro-prudential supervision, coordinated by European Supervisory Authorities ("ESAs"), and macro-prudential supervision through the establishment of the European Systemic Risk Board ("ESRB"). The three ESAs namely the European Banking Authority ("EBA"), created by Regulation (EU) No 1093/2010 of the European Parliament and of the Council³³, the European Insurance and Occupational Pensions Authority ("EIOPA"), created by Regulation (EU) No 1094/2010 of the European Parliament and of the Council, and the European Securities and Markets Authority (ESMA), created by Regulation (EU) No 1095/2010 of the European Parliament and of the Council³⁴ (collectively "the founding regulations") – became operational in January 2011. The overall objective of the ESAs is to sustainably reinforce the stability and effectiveness of the financial system throughout the Union and to enhance consumer and investor protection.

- (2) The ESAs have made a crucial contribution to the harmonisation of the rules of the financial markets in the Union by providing the Commission with input for its initiatives for regulations and directives adopted by Council and Parliament. The ESAs have also provided the Commission with drafts of detailed technical rules which have been adopted as delegated and implementing acts.
- (3) The ESAs have also contributed to the convergence in financial supervision. And supervisory practice in the Union by means of guidelines directed at competent authorities and by coordinating reviews of supervisory practices. However, the decision making processes enshrined in their founding regulations, in addition to constraints on resources and the nature of those instruments, which the ESAs have at their disposal, have prevented them from fully achieving their overall objectives.
- (4) After seven years of operation and following evaluations and the public consultations undertaken by the Commission it appears that the ESAs are increasingly constrained in their capacity to meet their objectives of the further integration of financial markets and services and the enhancement of consumer protection, within the existing legislative framework, both in the Union and between the Union and third countries.
- (5) Any enhanced powers to be afforded to the ESAs, to enable them to meet those objectives, would also require both appropriate governance and sufficient funding. Enhanced powers alone would not be sufficient to achieve the ESAs' objectives where they do not have sufficient funding or where they are not governed in an effective and efficient manner.
- (6) In the Commission's Communication of 8 June 2017 on the mid-term review of the Capital Markets Union Action Plan, it was emphasised that a more effective and consistent supervision of financial markets and services is pivotal for the elimination of regulatory arbitrage between Member States, when exercising their supervisory tasks, for the acceleration of market integration and for the creation of single market opportunities for financial entities and investors.

- (7) Further progress in supervisory integration is therefore particularly urgent to complete the Capital Markets Union. Ten years after the onset of the financial crisis and the establishment of the new supervisory system, financial services and the Capital Markets Union will be increasingly driven by two major developments: sustainable finance and technological innovation. Both have the potential to transform financial services and our system of financial supervision should be equipped for them.
- (8) It is therefore crucial that the financial system plays its full part in meeting critical sustainability challenges. This will require a deep re-engineering of the financial system to which the ESAs should make an active contribution starting with reforms to create the right regulatory and supervisory framework to mobilise and orient private capital flows towards sustainable investments.
- (9) The ESAs should play an important role in identifying and reporting risks that environmental, social and governance factors pose to financial stability, and in rendering financial markets activity more consistent with sustainability objectives. The ESAs should provide guidance on how sustainability considerations can be effectively embodied in relevant EU financial legislation, and promote coherent implementation of these provisions upon adoption.
- (10) Technological innovation has had an increasing impact on the financial sector and competent authorities have therefore taken various initiatives to deal with those technological developments. In order to promote better supervisory convergence and to exchange best practices between relevant authorities on the one hand, and between relevant authorities and financial institutions or financial market participants on the other hand, the role of the ESAs with regard to their oversight function and supervisory coordination should be strengthened..
- (11) Technological advancements in financial markets can improve financial inclusion provide access to finance, enhance market integrity and operational efficiency and also lower barriers to entry in those markets. To the extent relevant for the applicable substantive rules, training of competent authorities should also extend to technological innovation.. This should contribute to avoiding that Member States develop divergent approaches in these matters.
- (12) A number of national authorities are not defined as competent authorities under the founding regulations, yet they are empowered to ensure the application of Union legislation in the area of financial services and markets. In order to ensure consistent, efficient and effective supervisory practices within the ESFS, it is necessary to define them as such. This would allow the ESAs notably to issue guidelines and recommendation to those national authorities.
- (13) In order to ensure appropriate safeguards for the stakeholders' interests where the ESAs exercise their competence to issue guidelines or recommendations, the various Stakeholder Groups should be able to issue an opinion where two thirds of their members consider that the ESA concerned has exceeded its competence. In that instance, the Commission should have the authority to require the ESA, after a proper assessment, to withdraw those guidelines or recommendations as appropriate.

- (14) In addition, for the purpose of the procedure provided for in Article 17 of the founding regulations and in the interest of proper application of Union law, it is appropriate to ease and speed up the ESAs' access to information. They should therefore be enabled to request information directly, via a duly justified and reasoned request, from all competent authorities concerned, financial institutions and financial market participants, even where those authorities, institutions or market participants have not themselves violated any provision of Union law. The ESAs should inform the competent authority concerned of such requests and that competent authority should assist the ESAs in collecting the requested information.
- (15) A harmonised supervision of the financial sector requires a consistent approach among competent authorities. To that end, the activities of the competent authorities should be subject to regular and independent reviews by the ESAs, which should be supported by a review committee established by each of them. The ESAs should also develop a methodological framework for such reviews. The independent reviews should not only focus on the convergence of supervisory practices, but also on the capacity of competent authorities to achieve high quality supervisory outcomes, as well as on the independence of those competent authorities. The results of those reviews should be published to encourage compliance and increase transparency, unless such publication would involve risks to financial stability.
- (16) A harmonised supervision of the financial sector also requires that disagreements between the competent authorities of different Member States in cross-border situations are settled efficiently. The existing rules for settling such disagreements are not fully satisfactory. They should therefore be adapted so as to be more easily applicable.
- (17) Integral to the ESAs work on convergence of supervisory practices is the promotion of a Union supervisory culture. However, the ESAs are not equipped with all the tools required to achieve this objective. It is necessary to enable the ESAs to set out the general supervisory objectives and priorities in a multiannual Strategic Supervisory Plan, intended to assist competent authorities in identifying and focussing on the most important areas of concern for EU-wide market integrity and financial stability, including with respect to prudential supervision of firms engaged in cross-border activities. The Strategic Supervisory Plan should be risk-based and take into account general economic and regulatory orientations for supervisory actions as well as relevant micro-prudential trends, potential risks and vulnerabilities identified by the ESAs in their reviews of competent authorities and from Union-wide and stress tests. The competent authorities should subsequently draw up annual work programmes to implement the Strategic Supervisory Plan, which convert the Union priorities and objectives into operational objectives for those authorities. The ESAs should be empowered to review the implementation of the annual work programs on day-to-day supervision including, on a sample basis, supervisory measures taken in individual cases in order to ensure that the ESAs can achieve their objective of harmonising supervisory practices.
- (18) The current supervisory practices of outsourcing, delegation and risks transfer (back-to-back business or fronting) from one licensed entity to another entity vary from one Member State to another. Those divergent regulatory approaches carry a risk of regulatory arbitrage across Member States ("race to the bottom"). Inefficient supervision of outsourced, delegated or transferred activities exposes the Union to financial stability risks. Those risks are particularly acute in relation to supervised entities outsourcing, delegating or transferring risk to third countries where supervisory authorities may lack the necessary tool to adequately and effectively supervise material activities and key functions. ESAs should have an active role in promoting supervisory convergence by ensuring a common understanding and supervisory practices of outsourcing, risk transfer and delegation of material activities and key functions in third countries, in accordance with Union law and in view of guidelines, recommendations and opinions that the ESAs may adopt. The ESAs should therefore have the necessary powers to effectively coordinate supervisory actions carried out by national supervisory authorities both when authorising or registering an undertaking and as part of an ongoing review of supervisory practices. In performing this coordination role, ESAs should particularly focus on situations that may lead to a circumvention of the rules and monitor financial institutions or financial market participants that intend to make an extensive use of outsourcing, delegation and risk transfer in third countries with the intention of benefitting from the EU passport while essentially performing substantial activities or functions outside the Union

- (19) Continued financial stability requires that third-country equivalence decisions that have been adopted by the Commission are monitored on an ongoing basis. The ESAs should therefore verify whether the criteria, on the basis of which the third-country equivalence decisions have been taken and any conditions set out therein, are still fulfilled. In addition, the ESAs should monitor both the regulatory and supervisory developments and the enforcement practices in those third countries. In that context, the ESAs should also develop administrative arrangements with third-country competent authorities to obtain information for monitoring purposes and for coordinating supervisory activities. This enhanced supervisory regime will ensure that third countries/ equivalence is more transparent, more predictable for the third countries concerned and more consistent across all sectors.
- (20) The collection and gathering of accurate and complete information by the ESAs is essential to the carrying out of their tasks and functions and to achieving their objectives. In order to avoid duplication of reporting obligations for financial institutions and financial market participants, that information should be provided by the relevant competent authorities or national supervisory authorities which are closest to the financial markets and institutions. However, the ESAs should be able to address a duly justified and reasoned request for information directly to financial institutions or financial market participants where a competent authority does not or cannot provide that information within a specified period. Furthermore, it is necessary for the purposes of ensuring the effectiveness of the ESAs' right to collect information that they should have the possibility to impose periodic penalty payments or fines on those financial institutions or financial market participants that do not comply accurately, completely or in a timely manner with a request or decision to submit information. The right of the financial institution or financial market participant concerned to be heard by the ESAs should be guaranteed explicitly.

- (21) Within the founding regulations of the ESAs it was provided that competent authorities would play a key role within their governance structure. It was also specified in those regulations that in order to prevent conflicts of interest, the members of the Board of Supervisors and of the Management Board would act independently and in the sole interest of the Union. The initial governance structure of the ESAs did not however provide sufficient safeguards to ensure that conflicts of interest be entirely avoided which can affect the ESAs' ability to take all the decisions necessary in the area of supervisory convergence and to ensure that their decisions take the broader Union interests fully into account. Therefore in order to ensure the effectiveness and efficiency of the decision making process of the ESAs, the allocation of the decision making powers within the ESAs should be redefined.
- (22) Moreover, the Union dimension in the decision-making process within the Board of Supervisors should be enhanced by including independent full time members as members of the Board, who are not subject to possible conflicts of interest. Decision-making powers on issues of a regulatory nature and on direct supervision should remain fully with the competence of the Board of Supervisors. The Management Board should be transformed into an Executive Board composed of full time members and should decide on certain non-regulatory issues, including independent reviews of competent authorities, dispute settlements, breach of Union law, the Strategic Supervisory Plan, monitoring of outsourcing, delegation and risk transfers to third countries, stress tests and requests for information. The Executive Board should also examine and prepare all decisions to be taken by the Board of Supervisors. Moreover, the position and role of the Chairperson should be enhanced by empowering the Chairperson with formal tasks and with a casting vote in the Executive Board. Finally, the Union dimension in the ESAs governance should also be strengthened by amending the selection procedure of the Chairperson and the members of the Executive Board to one which will include the role of the Council and the European Parliament. The Executive Board should have a balanced composition.
- (23) In order to provide for an appropriate level of expertise and accountability, the Chairperson and the members of the Executive Board should be appointed on the basis of merit, skills, knowledge of clearing, post-trading and financial matters, as well as experience relevant to the financial supervision. To ensure transparency and democratic control, as well as to safeguard the rights of the Union institutions, the Chairperson and the members of the Executive Board should be chosen on the basis of an open selection procedure. The Commission should establish a shortlist and submit that shortlist to the European Parliament for approval. Following that approval, the Council should adopt a decision to appoint the members of the Executive Board. The Chairperson and the full time members of the Executive Board should be accountable to the European Parliament and to the Council for any decisions taken on the basis of the founding Regulations.
- (24) To ensure a more efficient allocation of operational tasks on the one hand and the management of administrative day-to-day activities on the other hand, the current tasks of the Executive Director of each of the ESAs should be assumed by one of the members of the Executive Board, who should be selected on the basis of those particular tasks.

- (25) It is appropriate that financial institutions and financial market participants contribute to the financing of the activities of the ESAs, because the overall objective of the activities of the ESAs is to contribute to financial stability and, through the avoidance of distortions of competition, the proper operation of the single market. The activities of the ESAs benefit all financial institutions and financial market participants, whether or not they operate across borders. The ESAs contribute to them conducting their business in a stable environment and on a level playing field. Financial institutions and financial market participants that are not directly supervised by the ESA's should therefore also contribute to the funding of those activities of the ESAs from which they benefit. In addition, the ESAs should however also receive fees paid by the financial institutions and financial market participants that are directly supervised by them.
- (26) Within each category of financial institutions and financial market participants, the level of contributions should take into account how much each financial institution and financial market participant benefits from the activities of the ESAs. Accordingly, individual contributions by financial institutions and financial market participants should be determined by reference to their size in order to reflect their importance in the relevant market. The collection of very small contributions should be subject to a de minimis threshold, to ensure that their collection is economical whilst at the same time ensuring that larger firms are not required to contribute disproportionately.
- (27) In order to determine how the annual contributions by individual financial institutions and financial market participants are to be calculated, power to adopt acts in accordance with Article 290 of the Treaty should be delegated to the Commission. The delegated acts will establish a methodology to allocate the estimated expenditure to categories of financial institutions or financial market participants and criteria to determine the level of individual contributions based on size. It is of particular importance that the Commission carry out appropriate consultations during its preparatory work, including at expert level, and that those consultations be conducted in accordance with the principles laid down in the Interinstitutional Agreement on Better Law-Making of 13 April 2016. In particular, to ensure equal participation in the preparation of delegated acts, the European Parliament and the Council receive all documents at the same time as Member States' experts, and their experts systematically have access to meetings of Commission expert groups dealing with the preparation of delegated acts.
- (28) To preserve the confidentiality of the work of the ESAs, the requirements of professional secrecy should also apply to any person who provides any service, directly or indirectly, permanently or occasionally, related to the tasks of the ESA concerned.
- (29) Regulations (EC) 1093/2010, 1094/2010 and 1095/2010 as well as sectoral financial services legislation require the ESAs to seek effective administrative arrangements, involving the exchange of information with third-country supervisors. The need for effective cooperation and information exchange should become all the more important when, pursuant to this amending Regulation, some of the ESAs assume additional, broader responsibilities in relation to the supervision of non-EU entities and activities. Where, in this context, the ESAs process personal data, including by transferring such data outside the Union, they are bound by the requirements of Regulation (EU) No 2018/XXX (Data Protection Regulation for EU institutions and Bodies). In the absence of an adequacy decision or of appropriate safeguards, for example provided for in administrative arrangements within the meaning of Article 49(3) of the Data Protection Regulation for EU institutions and Bodies, the ESAs may exchange personal data with third-country authorities in accordance with and under the conditions of the public interest derogation as set out in Article 51(1)(d) thereof, which notably applies to cases of international data exchange between financial supervisory authorities.

- (30) It is essential that the EBA decision making procedures provide appropriate safeguards for Member States not participating in the banking union, whilst at the same time enabling the EBA to continue to take decisions in an effective manner when the number of non-participating Member States reduces. The current voting rules requiring that a majority of participating member States and a majority of non-participating Member States for EBA take a decision should be maintained. However, additional safeguards are required in order to avoid a scenario whereby decisions cannot be taken only because of absences of member State competent authorities and in order to ensure that as many national competent authorities as possible are present when voting to end up with a strong and legitimate vote.
- (31) The founding regulations of the ESAs provide that the ESAs, in cooperation with the ESRB, should initiate and coordinate Union-wide stress tests in order to assess the resilience of financial institutions or financial market participants to adverse market developments. It should also ensure that a consistent methodology is applied, in as much as possible, at national level to such tests. To ensure a proper balance between competent authorities' supervisory concerns and Union wide considerations, it is appropriate to transfer to the Executive Board of the ESAs the power to decide on the initiation and coordination of stress tests. It should also be clarified, in respect of all of the ESAs, that the professional secrecy obligations of competent authorities shall not prevent competent authorities from transmitting the results of stress test to the ESAs for the purpose of publication.
- (32) To ensure a high level of convergence in the area of supervision and approval of internal models, EIOPA should be able to issue opinions to remedy potential inconsistencies and assist competent authorities in reaching agreement related to the approval of internal models. Competent authorities should take their decisions in conformity with these opinions, or alternatively explain why there are not conforming to the opinion.
- (33) With the ever increasing cross-border dimension of trading activities and, in particular, of the activities of certain investment firms which, by their systemic nature, may have cross-border effects impacting financial stability, ESMA should have an enhanced coordination role in recommending competent authorities to initiate corresponding investigations. Furthermore, it should be able to facilitate the exchange of information relevant for those investigations, where ESMA has reasonable grounds to suspect that activity with significant cross-border effects is taking place that threatens the orderly functioning and integrity of financial markets or the financial stability in the Union. For this purpose, ESMA should maintain a data storage facility to collect from, and disseminate between, competent authorities, all relevant information

- (34) The main objectives of Regulation (EU) No 345/2013 of the European Parliament and of the Council³⁵, Regulation (EU) No 346/2013 of the European Parliament and of the Council³⁶ and Regulation (EU) 2015/760 of the European Parliament and of the Council³⁷ is boosting jobs and growth, SME financing, social and long-term investments, as well as promoting an EU investment culture. However, the divergent use by national competent authorities of their discretion, their divergent administrative practices, and the differences in supervisory cultures and performance remain despite the harmonisation achieved by the three Regulations. Those divergences hinder the necessary level playing field among managers of qualifying venture capital funds, qualifying social entrepreneurship funds and long-term investment funds in different Member States increasing, at the same time, the transaction and operational costs of those managers.
- (35) To lower transaction and operational costs, to strengthen investor choice and to increase legal certainty, it is appropriate to transfer the supervisory powers, including the granting and withdrawal of registrations and authorisations, for managers of qualifying venture capital funds and those funds as referred to in Regulation (EU) No 345/2013, managers of qualifying social entrepreneurship funds or those funds as referred to in Regulation (EU) No 346/2013 and European long-term investment funds as referred to in Regulation (EU) 2015/760, from the competent authorities to ESMA. For that purpose, ESMA should be able to conduct investigations and on-site inspections and to impose penalties or periodic penalty payments to compel persons to put an end to an infringement, to supply complete and correct information required by ESMA or to submit to an investigation or an on-site inspection.
- (36) Regulation (EU) 2015/760 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 29 April 2015 on European long-term investment funds lays down uniform requirements which must be met by long-term funds in order to be authorised as an ‘ELTIF’. Regulation (EU) 2015/760 lays down rules on qualifying investments, qualifying portfolio undertakings, concentration rules, and eligible investors. The rules also define the supervisory powers, including requirements for authorizations and ongoing supervision. Whilst maintaining the prudential rules in Regulation (EU) 2015/760, this Regulation confers supervisory powers, including authorization, ongoing supervision and withdrawals of authorisations, on ESMA. This regulation entrusts ESMA with the drawing up of draft regulatory technical standards which do not involve policy choices for submission to the Commission, so that the legal obligations and the scope of ESMA's discretion under Regulation (EU) 2015/760 are sufficiently clear. Similar changes have been made to Regulations (EU) 345/2013 and 346/2013 to confer supervisory powers on ESMA.
- (37) In order to effectively exercise its supervisory powers with respect to qualifying venture capital funds, qualifying social entrepreneurship funds and European long-term investment funds and their managers, ESMA should be able to conduct investigations and on-site inspections. To support ESMA's oversight capabilities,

³⁶ Regulation (EU) No 346/2013 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 17 April 2013 on European social entrepreneurship funds (OJ L 115, 25.4.2013, p. 18).

³⁷ Regulation (EU) 2015/760 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 29 April 2015 on European long-term investment funds (OJ L 123/98, 19.5.2015, p. 98).

ESMA should be granted powers to impose penalties or periodic penalty payments to compel persons to put an end to an infringement, to supply complete and correct information required by ESMA or to submit to an investigation or an on-site inspection. This Regulation should therefore clearly define the boundaries of such administrative sanctions or other administrative measures which should be effective, proportionate and dissuasive and ensure a common approach and a deterrent effect. ESMA's investigatory and enforcement activities should rely on the support of national authorities where needed and required. ESMA should be empowered to delegate certain of these functions can still be delegated back to the national competent authorities

- (38) Article 40 of Regulation (EU) No 600/2014 granted ESMA with temporary intervention powers, which allow ESMA under certain conditions, to temporarily prohibit or restrict in the Union the marketing, distribution or sale of certain financial instruments or financial instruments with certain specified features, or a type of financial activity or practice. It is explicit that these product intervention powers under Regulation (EU) No 600/2014 apply to investment firms and credit institutions involved in marketing, distribution or sale of financial instruments, including units in collective investment undertakings. Since units in collective investment undertakings may also be directly marketed, distributed or sold by management companies of undertakings for collective investment in transferable securities and investment companies authorised in accordance with Directive 2009/65/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council and managers of alternative investment funds (AIFMs) authorised in accordance with Directive 2011/61/EU of the European Parliament and of the Council, in the interest of enhancing legal certainty it is necessary to make it explicit that the above-mentioned product intervention powers under Regulation (EU) No 600/2014 also apply in respect of management companies of UCITS and UCITS investment companies, as well as to AIFMs.
- (39) In strictly defined and exceptional cases, ESMA may use its intervention powers to restrict or prohibit marketing, sale or distribution of units or shares in UCITS or AIFs also by their managers. This would be appropriate when the proposed action addresses a significant investor protection concern or a threat to the orderly functioning and integrity of financial markets or to the stability or part of the financial system in the Union; regulatory requirements under Union law that are applicable to the relevant financial instrument or activity do not address the threat; and a competent authority or competent authorities have not taken action to address the threat or the actions that have been taken do not adequately address the threat
- (40) Inconsistencies in the quality, formatting, reliability and cost of trading data have a detrimental effect on transparency, investor protection and market efficiency. In order to enhance the monitoring and reconstruction of trading data, to improve the consistency and quality of those data and their availability and accessibility at reasonable cost throughout the Union for the relevant trading venues, Directive 2014/65/EU introduced a new legal regime for data reporting services, including the authorisation and supervision of data reporting services providers.
- (41) The quality of trading data and of the processing and provisioning those data, including cross-border data procession and provisioning, is of paramount importance to achieve the main objective of Regulation (EU) No 600/2014 of strengthening the transparency of financial markets. The provision of core data services are therefore pivotal for users to be able to obtain the desired overview of trading activity across Union financial markets and for competent authorities to receive accurate and comprehensive information on relevant transactions.

- (42) In addition, trading data is an increasingly essential tool for effective enforcement of requirements stemming from Regulation (EU) No 600/2014. Given the cross-border dimension of data handling, data quality and the necessity to achieve economies of scale, and to avoid the adverse impact of potential divergences on both data quality and the tasks of data reporting service providers, it is beneficial and justified to transfer authorisation and supervisory powers in relation to data reporting service providers from competent authorities to ESMA and specify those powers in Regulation (EU) No 600/2014 enabling, at the same time, the consolidation of the benefits arising from pooling data-related competences within ESMA..
- (43) Retail investors should be adequately informed about potential risks when they decide to invest in a financial instrument. The legal framework of the Union aims at reducing the risk of misselling where retail investors are sold financial products which do not fit their needs or expectations. To that end, Directive 2014/65/EU and Regulation (EU) No 600/2014 enhance organisational and conduct of business requirements to ensure that investment firms act in the best interests of their clients. Those requirements include enhanced risk disclosure to clients, better assessment of suitability of products recommended as well as an obligation to distribute financial instruments to the identified target market, taking into account factors such as the solvency of issuers. ESMA should make full use of its powers to ensure supervisory convergence and support national authorities in achieving a high level of investor protection and effective oversight of risks associated with financial products.
- (44) It is important to ensure effective and efficient submissions, compilation, analysis and publication of data for the purposes of calculations for determining the requirements for the pre-and post-trade transparency and trading obligation regimes, as well as for the purposes of reference data in accordance with Regulation (EU) No 600/2014 and Regulation (EU) No 596/2014³⁸. ESMA should therefore be conferred competences to undertake direct data gathering from market participants in relation to pre- and post-trade transparency requirements, as well as their authorisation and oversight of data reporting services providers.
- (45) Granting those competences to ESMA allows for a centrally managed authorisation and oversight, which would avoid the current situation where multiple trading venues, systematic internalisers, APAs and CTPs are required to provide multiple competent authorities with data which are only then provided to ESMA. Such a centrally managed system should be highly beneficial to the market participants in terms of higher data transparency, investor protection and market efficiency.
- (46) The conferral of data gathering powers, authorisation and oversight from competent authorities to ESMA is also instrumental to other tasks ESMA is performing under Regulation (EU) No 600/2014, such as market monitoring, ESMA's temporary intervention powers and position management powers, as well as ensuring the consistent compliance with pre-trade and post-trade transparency requirements..

- (47) For ESMA to exercise its supervisory powers effectively within the area of data processing and provision, ESMA should be able to conduct investigations and on-site inspections. ESMA should be able to impose penalties or periodic penalty payments to compel data reporting service providers to put an end to an infringement, to supply complete and correct information required by ESMA or to submit to an investigation or an on-site inspection and to impose administrative sanctions or other administrative measures where it finds that a person has committed, intentionally or negligently, an infringement of Regulation (EU) No 600/2014.
- (48) Financial products using critical benchmarks are available in all Member States. Those benchmarks are therefore of crucial importance for the functioning of financial markets and financial stability in the Union. The supervision of a critical benchmark should therefore take a holistic view of potential impacts, not only in the Member State where the administrator is located and the Member States where its contributors are located, but across the entire Union. It is hence appropriate that critical benchmarks are supervised at Union level by ESMA. To avoid duplication of tasks, administrators of critical benchmarks should be supervised only by ESMA, including any non-critical benchmarks they might administer.
- (49) Where, however, a benchmark is of critical importance only in one Member State closer market proximity of the competent authority of that Member State might make it appropriate for ESMA to delegate, entirely or in parts, the supervision of that benchmark to the competent authority of the Member State where the administrator is located, provided that ESMA has obtained the prior consent of that competent authority for that purpose.
- (50) As administrators of and contributors to critical benchmarks are put under stricter requirements than administrators of and contributors to other benchmarks, the designation of benchmarks as critical benchmarks should be undertaken by the Commission or ESMA and should be codified by the Commission. As national competent authorities have best access to data on and information about benchmarks they supervise, they should notify the Commission or ESMA of benchmarks which, in their opinion, fulfil the criteria identifying critical benchmarks. .
- (51) Colleges of supervisors for critical benchmarks were envisaged to contribute to the harmonised application of rules under Regulation (EU) 2016/1011 and to the convergence of supervisory practices. Because ESMA is in direct contact with all national supervisors or is made up of those supervisors, those colleges of supervisors will no longer be needed.
- (52) The procedure to determine the Member State of reference for benchmark administrators located in third countries that apply for recognition in the Union is cumbersome and time-consuming for both applicants and national competent authorities. Applicants might try to influence that determination in the hope of supervisory arbitrage, as might other benchmark administrators located in third countries that seek access to the Union via the endorsement regime. Those benchmark administrators might choose their legal representative strategically in a Member State where they consider supervision less strict. A harmonised approach with ESMA as competent authority for third country benchmarks and their administrators avoids these risks and the costs of determining the Member State of reference as well as of the subsequent supervision. Furthermore, this role as competent authority for third country benchmarks establishes ESMA as the counterpart in the Union for supervisors in third countries, making cross-border cooperation more efficient and effective.

- (53) Many if not the majority of benchmark administrators are banks or financial services firms handling client money. In order not to undermine the Union's fight against money laundering or terrorist financing it should be a precondition for the conclusion of a cooperation arrangement with a competent authority under an equivalence regime that the country of the competent authority is not on the list of jurisdictions which have strategic deficiencies in their national anti-money laundering and countering the financing of terrorism regimes that pose significant threats to the financial system of the Union.
- (54) Almost all benchmarks are referenced in financial products which are available in several Member States, if not the entire Union. To detect risks related to the provision of benchmarks that might no longer be reliable or representative of the market or economic reality they intend to measure, competent authorities, including ESMA, should cooperate and assist each other where appropriate.
- (55) Due to the nature of the securities and issuers concerned, certain types of prospectuses drawn up according to Regulation (EU) 2017/1129 involve a cross-border dimension within the Union, a level of technical complexity and/or potential risks of regulatory arbitrage which are such that their centralised supervision by ESMA would achieve more effective and efficient results than their supervision at national level. Consolidating at the level of ESMA the approval of such prospectuses, as well as related supervisory and enforcement activities at the level of ESMA, should reduce compliance costs and administrative barriers while enhancing the quality, consistency and efficiency of supervision in the Union.
- (56) Private placements of non-equity securities are an important source of capital for issuers and are cross-border by nature. While a private placement with qualified investors does not require a prospectus, the subsequent admission to trading of the securities on a regulated market is subject to the publication of a prospectus under Regulation (EU) 2017/1129. The prospectus regime provides issuers with the flexibility to choose their home Member State where the denomination by unit of non-equity securities is in excess of 1000 EUR. As the non-equity securities concerned by private placements typically display a denomination by unit in excess of 1 000 EUR, this creates a potential for regulatory forum shopping. Entrusting ESMA with approving such wholesale non-equity prospectuses admitted to trading on a regulated market or its specific segment to which only qualified investors can have access to should achieve the double objective of ensuring a level playing field for issuers and a higher degree of efficiency by significantly streamlining approval procedures.
- (57) The approval of prospectuses relating to asset backed securities as well as the approval of prospectuses drawn up by specialist issuers, such as property companies, mineral companies, scientific research based companies or shipping companies, require national competent authorities to have highly specialized staff available, in most cases to deal with a fairly modest volume of prospectuses. Besides, certain non-financial information to be disclosed by specialist issuers is not set out in the delegated acts referred to in Article 13 of Regulation (EU) 2017/1129 but is left to the discretion of national competent authorities. This represents a potential source of inefficiency and regulatory arbitrage. Entrusting ESMA with the approval of these types of prospectuses should, on the one hand, ensure a level playing field in terms of information disclosure and eliminate the risk of regulatory arbitrage and, on the other hand, optimise the allocation of supervisory resources at Union level by establishing ESMA as the centre of expertise, thereby enhancing the efficiency of supervision of the prospectuses concerned.

- (58) Third country issuers which draw up a prospectus in accordance with Union law enjoy some flexibility as regards the choice of their home Member State for the purpose of prospectus approval, which carries the risk of creating supervisory forum shopping across Member States. Consolidating such approvals at the level of ESMA would ensure a fully harmonised approach vis-à-vis third country issuers and eliminate the potential for regulatory arbitrage. Third country issuers will thereby have ESMA as their single point of contact in the Union regardless of the Member State(s) where they offer their securities or request an admission to trading. This removes the need to determine a home Member State for such third country issuers.
- (59) The equivalence regime for prospectuses drawn up under the national laws of third countries should be amended to provide that the equivalence assessment and the subsequent adoption of a decision by the Commission are based not only on the information requirements of the national laws of such third countries, but also on the existence of a framework for the scrutiny and approval of the prospectus by the third country supervisor, including its supplements, where applicable, and effective supervision and enforcement of the offers and admissions under such prospectus. In order to be consistent with the approach set out by the Commission in its Staff Working Document 'EU equivalence decisions in financial services policy: an assessment' (SWD(2017) 102 final), the Commission should be able to subject its equivalence decision to additional conditions with a view to protecting market integrity within the Union, and promoting the internal market for financial services as well as common values and shared regulatory objectives at international level. Such conditions may consist in a requirement for the third country to provide for an effective equivalent system for the recognition of prospectuses drawn up according to Regulation (EU) No 2017/1129 or the ability of ESMA to cooperate with the relevant third country supervisor in order to monitor the rules of the third country on an ongoing basis.
- (60) Where the legal and supervisory arrangements of a third country relating to prospectuses drawn up in accordance with the national law of that third country have been declared equivalent by the Commission, and where an appropriate cooperation arrangement has been concluded between ESMA and the supervisory authority of that third country, any prospectus approved by the supervisory authority of that third country which is used in the Union for an offer of securities to the public or an admission to trading on a regulated market should be filed with ESMA and the rules for determining the home Member State should be disapplied.
- (61) As the equivalence regime provided for in Regulation (EU) 2017/1129 requires that competent authorities and ESMA rely on third country supervisors with regard to offers and admissions to trading taking place in the Union on the basis of a prospectus drawn up under third-country rules, those competent authorities and ESMA also need to be confident that the prevention of the use of the financial system for the purposes of money laundering and terrorist financing is ensured in the third country concerned. For that purpose, and also in order not to undermine the Union's fight against money laundering and/or terrorist financing, it should be a precondition for a conclusion by ESMA of a cooperation arrangement with a third country supervisor under the equivalence regime provided by Regulation (EU) 2017/1129 that the third country is not included on the list of jurisdictions which are declared as having strategic deficiencies in their national anti-money laundering and countering the financing of terrorism regimes that pose significant threats to the financial system of the Union.

- (62) ESMA should be empowered to impose administrative sanctions or take other administrative measures for infringements of Regulation (EU) No 2017/1129 related to the specific types of prospectuses for which approval is conferred to ESMA. This Regulation should therefore clearly define the boundaries of such administrative sanctions or other administrative measures which should be effective, proportionate and dissuasive.
- (63) The supervision of advertisements related to those prospectuses whose approval is conferred to ESMA should also be transferred to ESMA. ESMA should have the option to exercise control over the compliance of those advertisements. However such control should always be performed by ESMA in relation to any advertisement disseminated in a Member State whose competent authority has formally requested ESMA to make use of its controlling power whenever a prospectus approved by ESMA is used for an offer or admission in its jurisdiction. To perform such a task, ESMA should have adequate human resources with sufficient knowledge of the relevant national rules on consumer protection.
- (64) ESMA should scrutinise and approve all prospectuses of the types defined by this Regulation that are submitted for approval from the date of application of this Regulation. Prospectuses of the types defined by this Regulation that were approved by a competent authority before the date of application of this Regulation, or submitted for approval to a competent authority but not yet approved at that date, should continue to be supervised by that competent authority. To avoid any confusion, such supervision should cover in particular the finalisation of the scrutiny and approval procedure for those prospectuses not yet approved, as well as all approval and notification tasks applying to related supplements and final terms, where applicable.
- (65) It is appropriate to provide for a reasonable period of time to make the necessary arrangements for the envisaged governance structure and the delegated and implementing acts in order to enable the ESAs and the other parties concerned to apply the rules introduced by this Regulation.
- (66) Regulation (EU) No 1093/2010; Regulation (EU) No 1094/2010; Regulation (EU) No 1095/2010; Regulation (EU) No 345/2013; Regulation (EU) No 346/2013; Regulation (EU) No 600/2014 ; Regulation (EU) No 2015/760; Regulation (EU) 2016/2011; Regulation (EU) 2017/1129 should therefore be amended accordingly,

HAVE ADOPTED THIS REGULATION:

Article 1
Amendments to Regulation (EU) No 1093/2010

Regulation (EU) 1093/2010 is amended as follows:

(1) Article 1 is amended as follows:

(a) paragraph 2 is replaced by the following:

"2. Disclosure, nature, enforcement and allocation of fines and periodic penalty payments

1. ESMA shall disclose to the public every fine and periodic penalty payment that has been imposed pursuant to Articles 43f and 43g unless such disclosure to the public would seriously jeopardise the financial markets or cause disproportionate damage to the parties involved.
2. Fines and periodic penalty payments imposed pursuant to Articles 43f and 43g shall be of an administrative nature.
3. Where ESMA decides to impose no fines or penalty payments, it shall inform the European Parliament, the Council, the Commission, and the competent authorities of the Member State concerned accordingly and shall set out the reasons for its decision.
4. Fines and periodic penalty payments imposed pursuant to Articles 43f and 43g shall be enforceable.

Enforcement shall be governed by the rules of civil procedure in force in the Member State or third-country in which it is carried out.

5. The amounts of the fines and periodic penalty payments shall be allocated to the general budget of the European Union.

SECTION 3

PROCEDURES AND REVIEW

Article 43i

Procedural rules for taking supervisory measures and imposing fines

1. Where, in carrying out its duties under this Regulation, ESMA finds that there are serious indications of the possible existence of facts liable to constitute one or more of the infringements listed in point (a) of Article 38(1), ESMA shall appoint an independent investigation officer within ESMA to investigate the matter. The appointed officer shall not be involved or have been directly or indirectly involved in the approval of the prospectus to which the infringement relates and shall perform his functions independently from ESMA's Board of Supervisors.
2. The investigation officer referred to in paragraph 1 shall investigate the alleged infringements, taking into account any comments submitted by the persons who are subject to the investigations, and shall submit a complete file with his findings to ESMA's Board of Supervisors.

3. In order to carry out his tasks, the investigation officer shall have the power to request information in accordance with Article 43b and to conduct investigations and on-site inspections in accordance with Articles 43c and 43d.
4. Where carrying out his tasks, the investigation officer shall have access to all documents and information gathered by ESMA in its supervisory activities.
5. Upon completion of his investigation and before submitting the file with his findings to ESMA's Board of Supervisors, the investigation officer shall give the persons subject to the investigations the opportunity to be heard on the matters being investigated. The investigation officer shall base his findings only on facts on which the persons concerned have had the opportunity to comment.
6. The rights of the defence of the persons subject to the investigations shall be fully respected during investigations under this Article.
7. Upon submission of the file with his findings to ESMA's Board of Supervisors, the investigation officer shall notify the persons who are subject to the investigations. The persons subject to the investigations shall be entitled to have access to the file, subject to the legitimate interest of other persons in the protection of their business secrets. The right of access to the file shall not extend to confidential information affecting third parties.
8. On the basis of the file containing the investigation officer's findings and, when requested by the persons subject to the investigations, after having heard those persons in accordance with Article 43j, ESMA shall decide if one or more of the infringements listed in point (a) of Article 38(1) has been committed by the persons subject to the investigations and, in such a case, shall take a supervisory measure in accordance with Article 43e and impose a fine in accordance with Article 43f.
9. The investigation officer shall not participate in the deliberations of ESMA's Board of Supervisors or in any other way intervene in the decision-making process of ESMA's Board of Supervisors.
10. The Commission shall adopt delegated acts in accordance with Article 44 to specify the rules of procedure for the exercise of the power to impose fines or periodic penalty payments, including provisions on rights of defence, temporal provisions, and the collection of fines or periodic penalty payments, and the limitation periods for the imposition and enforcement of fines and periodic penalty payments.
11. ESMA shall refer matters for criminal prosecution to the relevant national authorities where, in carrying out its duties under this Regulation, it finds that there are serious indications of the possible existence of facts liable to constitute criminal offences. In addition, ESMA shall refrain from imposing fines or periodic penalty payments where a prior acquittal or conviction arising from identical fact or facts which are substantially the same has already acquired the force of res judicata as the result of criminal proceedings under national law.

Article 43j

Hearing of the persons subject to investigations

1. Before taking any decision pursuant to Articles 43e, 43f and 43g, ESMA shall give the persons subject to investigations the opportunity to be heard on its findings. ESMA shall base its decisions only on findings on which the persons subject to investigations have had an opportunity to comment.

The first subparagraph shall not apply if urgent action pursuant to Article 43e is needed in order to prevent significant and imminent damage to the financial system. In such a case ESMA may adopt an interim decision and shall give the persons concerned the opportunity to be heard as soon as possible after taking its decision.

2. The rights of defence of the persons subject to investigations shall be fully respected in the investigations. They shall be entitled to have access to ESMA's file, subject to the legitimate interest of other persons in the protection of their business secrets. The right of access to the file shall not extend to confidential information or ESMA's internal preparatory documents.

Article 43k

Review by the Court of Justice

The Court of Justice shall have unlimited jurisdiction to review decisions whereby ESMA has imposed a fine or a periodic penalty payment. It may annul, reduce or increase the fine or periodic penalty payment imposed.

SECTION 4

FEES AND DELEGATION

Article 43l

Supervisory fees

ESMA shall charge fees to issuers, offerors or persons asking for admission to trading on a regulated market in accordance with this Regulation and in accordance with the delegated acts adopted pursuant to paragraph 3. Those fees shall fully cover ESMA's necessary expenditure relating to the scrutiny and approval of prospectuses, including supplements thereto, and to their notification to competent authorities of host Member States, and the reimbursement of any costs that the competent authorities may incur carrying out work pursuant to this Regulation in particular as a result of any delegation of tasks in accordance with Article 43m.

2. The amount of an individual fee charged to a particular issuer, offeror or person asking for admission to trading on a regulated market shall cover all administrative costs incurred by ESMA for its activities in relation to the prospectus, including supplements thereto, drawn up by such issuer, offeror or person asking for admission to trading on a regulated market. It shall be proportionate to the turnover of the issuer, offeror or person asking for admission to trading on a regulated market.

3. The Commission shall adopt delegated acts in accordance with Article 44 to specify the type of fees, the matters for which fees are due, the amount of the fees and the manner in which they are to be paid.

Article 43m

Such specific supervisory tasks may, in particular, include the power to carry out requests for information in accordance with Article 43b and to conduct investigations and on-site inspections in accordance with Article 43c and Article 43d.

By way of derogation from the first subparagraph, the scrutiny, approval and notification of prospectuses, including supplements thereto, the final assessments and follow-up decisions concerning infringements shall not be delegated.

2. Prior to the delegation of a task in accordance with paragraph 1, ESMA shall consult the relevant competent authority about:

- (a) the scope of the task to be delegated;
- (b) the timetable for the performance of the task; and
- (c) the transmission of necessary information by and to ESMA.

3. ESMA shall reimburse a competent authority for costs incurred as a result of carrying out delegated tasks in accordance with the delegated act referred to in Article 43l(3).

4. ESMA shall review any delegation made in accordance with paragraph 1 at appropriate intervals. A delegation may be revoked at any time.

5. A delegation of tasks shall not affect the responsibility of ESMA and shall not limit ESMA's ability to conduct and oversee the delegated activity."

The proposal/initiative relates to the extension of an existing action

The proposal/initiative relates to an action redirected towards a new action

1.4. Objective(s)

1.4.1. The Commission's multiannual strategic objective(s) targeted by the proposal/initiative

Contribute to a deeper and fairer internal market with a strengthened industrial base

1.4.2. Specific objective(s)

Specific objective No

2.5 The financial regulatory framework is evaluated, appropriately implemented and enforced across the EU

1.4.3. Expected result(s) and impact

Specify the effects which the proposal/initiative should have on the beneficiaries/groups targeted.

The ESAs will ensure greater supervisory convergence with a strengthened EU dimension. Enhanced supervisory convergence has the potential to reduce administrative burdens for all supervised entities and additional synergies in reducing compliance costs for cross-border ones, while preserving the system from supervisory arbitrage by market participants.

The ESAs will be in a position to better coordinate national authorities and to exercise, where appropriate, direct supervision. This enhanced role of the ESAs can further market integration by facilitating cross-border business.

Enhancing supervisory convergence and establishing a level playing field across the Single market with a uniform fee setting mechanism would enable ESAs to raise funds (under a clear and transparent mechanism respecting the principle of equal treatment) in order to meet their current and future tasks and mandates in full. Such outcome would ultimately benefit all market participants.

1.4.4. Indicators of results and impact

Specify the indicators for monitoring implementation of the proposal/initiative.

Possible indicators:

- Number of adopted technical standards relative to those required to be developed ³⁹ As referred to in Article 54(2)(a) or (b) of the Financial Regulation.

- Number of draft technical standards submitted to the Commission for endorsement within the deadlines
- Number of technical standards proposed but rejected by the Commission
- Number of adopted non-binding recommendations relative to those required to be developed
- Number of requests for explanation by CAs
- Number of investigations of breach of EU law successfully closed
- Average duration of an investigation of breach of EU law
- Number of warnings on manifest breach of the EU law
- Number of successful mediations without binding settlement
- Number of colleges with EBA / EIOPA / ESMA participation
- Number of bilateral meetings with CAs
- Number of joint on-site inspections

- Number of on-site inspections and dedicated investigations
- Number of meetings with supervised entities
- Number of complaints / appeals from supervised companies
- Number of formal decisions adopted addressing emergency situations
- Number of populated databases
- Number of stress tests or equivalent exercises carried out
- Ratio of proposed versus adopted final budget (per annum)

1.5. Grounds for the proposal/initiative

1.5.1. Requirement(s) to be met in the short or long term

This proposal should address the following challenges:

1) Powers: While harmonized regulation through the Single Rulebook is important for the Single Market, it is not sufficient. Having a coherent approach to the interpretation and application of EU legislation is equally important in order to improve the functioning of the single market and reduce risks of supervisory arbitrage and competition. For this purpose, the ESAs need to be equipped to promote the proper application of EU law and effective common supervisory standards across the EU via supervisory convergence measures and direct supervision in certain areas. This is particularly the case for ESMA within the context of the CMU. That's why the legislative proposal aims at granting new powers to enhance market integration (for ESMA) and strengthening or clarifying existing powers set out in the ESA Regulations.

2) Governance: The main problem with the current governance set-up is the composition of the Board of Supervisors and the Management Board which does not sufficiently lead to the promotion of EU interests in decision-making and impedes the ESAs from delivering on their mandates in full by disincentivising the use of certain existing tools. The problem lies in the fact that the ESAs' Management Boards and Boards of Supervisors are mainly composed of representatives of national competent authorities, which are also the only ones that have voting rights (except for the Commission when voting on the budget in each of the Management Boards). This creates conflicts of interest. Moreover, the role and the powers of the chairpersons are also very limited and they are appointed by the Boards of Supervisors, which reduces their authority and independence. Additionally, the Boards of Supervisors are overburdened while the Management Boards have more limited tasks, which does not allow for swift decision making. Furthermore, the governance set-up impacts on the incentives of the ESAs to use certain tools such as binding mediation, the scope of peer reviews, the launch of breach of EU law procedures or the adoption of follow-up reports.

3) Funding: A revision of the current funding system would be necessary to ensure the effective operations of the ESAs and a fair sharing of the cost of their operations. As the legislative proposal aims at enhancing the ESAs' role in supervision, funding will need to adjust (most likely upwards) in an environment in which both EU and national budgets are under strain. Moreover, full public funding for the ESAs implies that public money pays for a service targeted to a specific part of the private sector. A more efficient and fair allocation of the ESAs' costs to economic actors would be possible by applying the "allocation-by-cause" principle and ensuring at least partial funding by that industry. Finally, the current system is not totally fair for some national competent authorities which provide a disproportionate share of funding compared to the size of the sector in their respective Member States.

1.5.2. Added value of Union involvement (it may result from different factors, e.g. coordination gains, legal certainty, greater effectiveness or complementarities). For the purposes of this point 'added value of Union involvement' is the value resulting from Union intervention which is additional to the value that would have been otherwise created by Member States alone.

Reasons for action at European level (ex-ante)

The 2017 evaluation demonstrates that EU action is justified and necessary to address identified problems in the area of powers available to the ESAs, their governance framework and their funding framework. Any actions in this respect will require amendments to the ESA Regulations. The ESAs are Union bodies whose powers and operation can only be amended by the Union legislator – in this case on the basis of Article 114 TFEU.

Expected generated Union added value (ex-post)

With the creation of the ESAs it was acknowledged that there was a need for an EU-level supervisory system to enhance consumer and investor protection and sustainably reinforce the stability and effectiveness of the financial system throughout the EU. These objectives are better achieved at Union level.

Stakeholders agree that the ESAs have significantly contributed to strengthening of coordination and cooperation among national supervisions and played a key role in ensuring that the financial markets across the EU are functioning in an orderly manner, are well regulated and supervised and consumers' protection is enhanced.

The need for the ESAs and their contribution to effective supervision across the EU will be even more important in light of the increasing interconnectedness of financial markets, EU and globally. The ESAs will be at the heart of efforts to build a Capital Markets Union ("CMU") given the central role that they play in promoting market integration and creating single market opportunities for financial entities and investors.

Going back to a nationally based supervisory framework based on the principle of home country control combined with minimum prudential standards and mutual recognition would simply not be able to deliver on the urgent needs to further integrate the EU financial markets and especially the capital markets framework. This would have a negative consequence on the EU's ability to strengthen long term investments and create funding sources for EU businesses which are necessary elements to strengthen the EU economy and stimulate investment to create jobs.

1.5.3. Lessons learned from similar experiences in the past

The three ESAs started operating as independent EU agencies in January 2011 under the 2010 ESA Regulations.

The Commission carried out an evaluation of the ESAs operations in 2014. At that time it concluded that the ESAs had performed well but nonetheless identified four areas where a number of issues could be considered for improvement: (1) funding framework (replacing the current framework); (2) powers (e.g., an increased focus on supervisory convergence, more effective use of existing powers, and clarifications of and possible extensions to current mandates); (3) governance (e.g., enhanced internal governance to ensure that decisions are taken in the interest of the EU as a whole); and (4) supervisory architecture (assessment of structural changes such as merging the authorities into a single body and seat or introducing a twin-peaks approach).

In October 2013 also the European Parliament carried out a review of the ESAs. Some of the conclusions were similar to those of the Commission in terms of the performance of the ESAs, including on the fact that the observation period was very short. The Parliament report contained a detailed list of items for improvement, some of which would require legislative changes. Additionally, in its March 2014 resolution on the ESFS review, the Parliament requested the Commission to submit new legislative proposals for the revision of the ESAs in areas including governance, representation, supervisory cooperation and convergence, and the enhancement of powers.

The Council concluded in November 2014 that targeted adaptations should be considered in order to improve the ESAs performance, governance and financing.

In this legislative proposal, consideration has been given to issues raised in previous evaluations and stakeholder claims (including those made in the context of the Commission's call for evidence and of the CMU). Particular consideration has however been given to the evaluation concluded during the spring of 2017 which concluded that the ESAs have broadly delivered on their current objectives and that the current sectoral supervisory architecture of the ESAs is appropriate. Targeted improvement to face future challenges were however recommended, in particular in relation to enhancing the ESAs powers, governance framework and funding framework.

1.5.4. Compatibility and possible synergy with other appropriate instruments

The objectives of this proposal are consistent with a number of other EU policies and ongoing initiatives that are aimed at: (i) developing the Economic and Monetary Union ("EMU"); (ii) developing the CMU; (iii) enhancing the efficiency and effectiveness of EU-level supervision, both within and outside the EU.

First, this proposal is coherent with the EMU. The Five Presidents' Report on Completing Europe's EMU underlined that the closer integration of capital markets and gradual removal of remaining national barriers could create new risks to financial stability. According to this report, there will be a need to expand and strengthen the supervisory framework to ensure the solidity of all financial actors. The Five Presidents' Report concluded that this situation should lead ultimately to a Single European Capital Markets Supervisor. Furthermore, the recent Reflection Paper on the deepening of the EMU stressed that: 'A more integrated supervisory framework ensuring common implementation of the rules for the financial sector and more centralised supervisory enforcement is key'. While the legislative proposal does not commit to creating a single supervisor for capital markets, this proposal aims at strengthening the supervisory framework. It also foresees the transfer of some supervisory responsibilities (such as the approval of some EU prospectuses, benchmarks administrators, data reporting services providers, some EU funds) to the EU level and to ESMA in particular.

Second, this proposal is coherent with the CMU project. By promoting more diverse funding channels, CMU will help to increase the resilience of the EU financial system. At the same time, there is a need to be alert to financial risks emerging in the capital markets. Therefore, the quality of the supervisory framework is a necessary element for well-functioning and integrated capital markets. The legislative proposal should ensure that the single rulebook is implemented in a uniform way across the Single Market. Therefore, financial entities with similar business size and risk profiles would be subject to the same standard of supervision regardless of where they are located in the EU and to avoid regulatory arbitrage.

Third, the proposal is coherent with the general objective of enhancing the efficiency and effectiveness of EU-level supervision, both within and outside the EU. In recent years the EU has put in place a range of reforms to make the banking, insurance and capital markets sectors more transparent, well regulated and robust. By clarifying some powers conferred to the ESAs (such as dispute settlements, independent reviews) and by modifying the governance structure of those agencies, the proposal will lead to improved supervision inside the EU. Furthermore, EU financial legislation has increasingly incorporated 'third country regimes' which allows non-EU firms to access the EU, usually on condition that they are authorised in a State which has a regulatory regime equivalent to that in the EU and which provides an effective reciprocal mechanism offering access to EU firms. The legislative proposal would more clearly state that the ESAs may assist the Commission with the monitoring of third-country developments (i.e., regulatory, supervisory and market developments in third country as well as the supervisory record of third country authorities) in jurisdictions subject to a positive equivalence decision by the Commission. The purpose of this monitoring is to ensure that the conditions upon which the equivalence decision is based continue to be fulfilled on an ongoing basis, with a particular emphasis on third-country developments that may impact the financial stability of the Union or of one and more of its Member States.

Fourth, this legislative proposal is also in line with the recent Commission's proposal on the procedures and authorities involved for the authorisation of Central Counterparties ("CCPs") and requirements for the recognition of third-country CCPs⁴⁰. The CCP proposal introduces a more pan-European approach to the supervision of EU CCPs. A newly-created supervisory mechanism will be established within ESMA which will be responsible for ensuring a more coherent and consistent supervision of EU CCPs as well as more robust supervision of CCPs in non-EU countries, or 'third countries'.

2. MANAGEMENT MEASURES

2.1. Monitoring and reporting rules

Specify frequency and conditions.

In line with already existing arrangements, the ESAs prepare regular reports on their activity (including internal reporting to Senior Management, reporting to Boards and the production of the annual report), and are subject to audits by the Court of Auditors and the Commission's Internal Audit Service on their use of resources and performance. Monitoring and reporting of the actions included in the proposal will comply with the already existing requirements as well as with any new requirements resulting from this proposal.

2.2. Management and control system

2.2.1. Risk(s) identified

In relation to the legal, economic, efficient and effective use of appropriations resulting from the proposal, it is expected that the proposal would not bring about new significant risks that would not be currently covered by an existing internal control framework.

However, a new challenge might be related to the shift of funding, namely, ensuring timely collection of annual contributions from financial institutions and financial market participants concerned.

2.2.2. Control method(s) envisaged

Management and control systems as provided for in the ESAs Regulations are already implemented. ESAs work closely together with the Internal Audit Service of the Commission to ensure that the appropriate standards are met in all areas of internal control framework. These arrangements will apply also with regard to the role of ESA according to the present proposal.

In addition, every financial year, the European Parliament, following a recommendation from the Council, grants discharge to each ESA for the implementation of their budget.

2.3. Measures to prevent fraud and irregularities

Specify existing or envisaged prevention and protection measures.

For the purposes of combating fraud, corruption and any other illegal activity, the provisions of Regulation (EU, Euratom) No 883/2013 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 11 September 2013 concerning investigations conducted by the European Anti-Fraud Office (OLAF) apply to the ESAs without any restriction.

The ESAs have a dedicated anti-fraud strategy and resulting action plan. The ESAs' strengthened actions in the area of anti-fraud will be compliant with the rules and guidance provided by the Financial Regulation (anti-fraud measures as part of sound financial management), OLAF's fraud prevention policies, the provisions provided by the Commission

Anti-Fraud Strategy (COM(2011)376) as well as set out by the Common Approach on EU decentralised agencies (July 2012) and the related roadmap.

In addition, the Regulations establishing the ESAs as well as the ESAs Financial Regulations set out the provisions on implementation and control of the ESAs budget and applicable financial rules, including those aimed at preventing fraud and irregularities.

⁴⁴ Candidate countries and, where applicable, potential candidates from the Western Balkans.

3.2. Estimated impact on expenditure

This legislative initiative will have the following impact on expenditure:

1. The hiring of 210 new staff members in total at EBA, EIOPA and ESMA during 2019-2022.
2. The cost of these new staff members (and other expenditure related to the new tasks required from the ESAs) will be fully funded by annual contributions for indirect supervision and fees for direct supervision raised from the industry (no impact on EU Budget). With regard to ESMA it has to be noted that the additional staff and all additional costs of direct supervision will be fully covered by fees from the industry.

However, assuming that the adoption and entry into force would take place in the first quarter of 2019, the fact that the Commission would have to prepare a delegated act specifying the annual contributions, the matters to which the fees are due, the amount of the fees and the manner in which they are to be paid, the proposal envisages that annual contributions are collected as of the beginning of the year that starts one full year after the entry into force – which means in this scenario that from 1 January 2021 the additional expenditure for indirect supervision resulting from this proposal can be funded from the annual contributions. As the ESAs would however incur costs under the Regulation from the entry into force of the Regulation, there is however a need to obtain additional budget from the EU in 2019 and 2020 in order to cover on a transitional basis for early phase of operations until annual contributions will be collected and will actually from 2021 onwards be able to reimburse the EU budget for the before mentioned transitional cover that it has provided in 2019 and 2020.

Similarly, fees that will cover the expenditure for direct supervision (which, according to this proposal, would apply from 24 months after its entry into force, i.e., 2021 in this scenario) in full will also only be collected after entry into force of specific delegated acts. It has been assumed in this document that in 2021 there is an impact on the EU budget from advances before these fees can be collected and that the ESAs will return the advance made by the EU at the latest in 2022. In 2022 no additional expenditure for the EU budget is expected, accordingly; in principle, additional expenditure in the area of direct supervision will be funded by fees to be collected from the market participants to be supervised.

This additional budget should come from the EU general budget, as DG FISMA's budget cannot cover for such an amount.

The costs of already existing and ongoing ESAs tasks and activities in 2019 and 2020 will be funded according to the current funding framework in line with the MFF 2014-2020.

THE ESTIMATED IMPACT ON EXPENDITURE AND STAFFING FOR THE YEARS 2021 AND BEYOND IN THIS LEGISLATIVE STATEMENT IS ADDED FOR ILLUSTRATIVE PURPOSES AND DOES NOT PREJUDGE THE POST 2020 MULTIANNUL FINANCIAL FRAMEWORK PROPOSAL TO BE PRESENTED BY MAY 2018. IT SHOULD ALSO BE NOTED IN THIS CONTEXT THAT WHILE THE HEADCOUNT NECESSARY FOR DIRECT SUPERVISION WILL DEPEND OVER TIME ON THE DEVELOPMENT OF THE NUMBER AND SIZE OF CAPITAL MARKETS PARTICIPANTS TO BE SUPERVISED, THE RESPECTIVE EXPENDITURE WILL IN PRINCIPLE BE FUNDED BY FEES TO BE COLLECTED FROM THOSE MARKET PARTICIPANTS.

3.2.4. Compatibility with the current multiannual financial framework

- The proposal/initiative is compatible with the current multiannual financial framework.
- The proposal/initiative will entail reprogramming of the relevant heading in the multiannual financial framework.

Explain what reprogramming is required, specifying the budget lines concerned and the corresponding amounts.

A reprogramming of the ESAs budget lines (12.0204, 12.0205 and 12.0206) is required. Although the full amounts envisaged will be ultimately covered by fees, an advance will be required from the EU budget to cover the costs incurred during at least the first 18 months of operation.

After adoption of the proposal, the Commission will be required to adopt a delegated act specifying in detail the methodology for calculating and collecting the fees. This will then require non-objection from the European Parliament and the Council and publication in the Official Journal before fees can start being collected. Nevertheless, these costs should be recuperated over time, at the latest in 2021.

- The proposal/initiative requires application of the flexibility instrument or revision of the multiannual financial framework⁵¹.

Explain what is required, specifying the headings and budget lines concerned and the corresponding amounts.

ANNEX

The costs related to the tasks to be carried out by the ESAs have been estimated for staff expenditure in conformity with the cost classification in the ESAs' draft budget for 2018. This legislative initiative will have an impact on costs incurred by the ESAs because of the changes brought to: (I.) the governance, (II.) the indirect supervisory powers of the ESAs (III.) the funding system to finance those agencies and (IV) the direct supervisory powers granted to ESMA. The extra-staff will also need to be supported by overheads resources and legal experts (V.). Given the increase in staff members, this legislative proposal may also imply some changes in ESAs premises (VI.).

I. Governance of the ESAs:

As a consequence of this legislative proposal, the current Management Board (composed of the Chairperson, the Executive Director and members of the Board of Supervisors) would be replaced by an Executive Board, a newly set-up body of four full-time independent members (including the Chairperson) for EBA and EIOPA and 6 full-time independent members (including the Chairperson) for ESMA with an exclusive focus on the ESAs' mandates. The current Executive Director could become part of the Executive Board. Those changes may require two additional staff members for EBA and EIOPA and four additional staff members⁵³ for ESMA (provided that those employees are recruited outside the organisation). They will be paid from the ESAs' budget. Those 2 new employees for EBA and EIOPA and 4 for ESMA should be experienced and should be recruited as AD temporary agents of at least a grade of AD 13. Recruitment-related costs (travel, hotel, medical examinations and other allowances, removal costs, and so on) estimated at EUR 12 700 per person will inevitably be incurred for these additional staff.

Under the legislative proposal, this Executive Board would be granted decision-making powers for certain non-regulatory tasks, where the incentive misalignments implied by the current governance model are most problematic (e.g., breach of Union law procedures and dispute settlements). As one of the objectives of this proposal is to increase the use of those powers, the permanent members of the Executive Board should be adequately supported in their tasks by additional human resources. For instance, the modifications brought to those powers should imply an increased number of requests for information (sent to competent authorities or market participants) and an increased use of dispute settlement powers. Most of those new tasks can be carried out by existing ESAs staff that can be redeployed from quasi-legislative work to supervisory convergence tasks. Indeed, in the future, it is expected that the regulatory work may slightly decrease or stagnate and more ESAs FTEs could work on supervisory convergence. As a consequence, in order to support the new Executive ⁵³ 6 permanent members of the Executive Boards – 1 Executive Director – 1 Chairperson = 4 new permanent members.

Board in its new tasks, only 2 additional FTEs for EBA and EIOPA and 3 additional FTEs for ESMA should be necessary.

To summarise, this legislative financial statement assumes that changes in the governance of the ESAs may imply for each of those agencies:

- The recruitment of 4 new ADs temporary agent for ESMA and 2 new ADs temporary agent for EBA and EIOPA of at least a grade of AD 13 with a high level of professional experience;
- 2 FTEs (all TAs) for EBA and EIOPA and 3 FTEs for ESMA to help the New Executive Board members in their new tasks and that will compensate the expected increase workload related to supervisory convergence works;
- Recruitment-related costs for these additional staff (travel, hotel, medical examinations and other allowances, removal costs, and so on).

II. Indirect Supervision by the ESAs:

i. Common tasks requiring the same resources for the 3 ESAs

In order to foster consistency within the network of financial supervisors, the peer reviews conducted by the ESAs would be replaced by independent reviews. While peer reviews are currently conducted by peer review panels mainly comprised of staff from the EU-28 national competent authorities, the independent reviews will be carried out under the supervision of the newly-established Executive Board. In order to fulfil this task, the legislative proposal provides that the Executive Board could set up a review committee. This committee would be composed of ESAs staff only, in order to ensure the independence of the reviews. The creation of such an] committee would thus require additional staff, even if some ESAs staff already participate in the current peer reviews. This increase in ESAs staff can be estimated at five additional staff members for each ESA, to compensate the absence of human resources provided by competent authorities for such exercises..

The ESAs will be also charged with a new mission aimed at coordinating the competent authorities, with a view to ensuring convergence in supervisory practices and consistent application of Union law. In this context, the ESAs would set common goals and objectives for supervision in the form of a multiannual EU Strategic Plan. The ESAs already prepares an annual work programme. However, the current ESAs' annual work programme is meant to cover regulatory and supervisory activities to be undertaken by the ESAs themselves, whereas the new EU Strategic Plan would be meant to cover supervisory activities to be carried out by competent authorities. In addition, the new coordination powers also imply that the competent authorities (including the Single Supervision Mechanism and the Single Resolution Mechanism/Board) would be required to draw up annual work programs (in line with the EU Strategic Plan) and submit them to the ESAs that would assess them against the EU Strategic Plan. The ESAs would then issue a recommendation or an individual approval decision addressed to each competent authority for its respective annual program and would review the implementation as it progresses. This interaction with the competent authorities and the coordination work with the relevant teams within each ESA would require additional human resources. Three additional staff members would be needed per ESA.

The ESAs would also be tasked with new missions related to Financial Technologies (FinTech). Under the legislative proposal, the ESAs would be required to: (i) pursue convergence on licensing requirements for Fintech companies, (ii) clarify and update the supervisory outsourcing frameworks, in particular as regards outsourcing to cloud services; (iii) coordinate national technological innovation hubs, and possibly issue guidelines about technological innovation hubs/regulatory sandboxes set up by Member States; and (iv) on cybersecurity, pursue convergence of IT risk management and contribute to develop, together with the Commission and the European Central Bank, cyber stress testing modalities. Dedicated resources on FinTech would be necessary to cover these additional tasks, estimated at 3 additional staff members.

ii. Tasks requiring different resources for the three ESAs

The ESAs would also have more clearly defined responsibilities in terms of monitoring the Commission's equivalence decision applicable to a third country's regulatory and supervisory framework. In the past, absent a clear legal basis for ESAs to assist the Commission with post-equivalence monitoring, some ESAs were unable to assist because of resource constraints. At present, the ESA provides an initial analysis feeding into the equivalence assessment of the Commission in one of two scenarios: the Commission has specifically requested EBA to provide technical advice, or EBA is specifically tasked to do so under some primary legislation. The ESA legislative proposal would more clearly state that the ESAs may assist the Commission with the monitoring of third-country developments (i.e., regulatory, supervisory and market developments in third country as well as the supervisory record of third country authorities) in jurisdictions subject to a positive equivalence decision by the Commission. The purpose of this monitoring is to ensure that the conditions upon which the equivalence decision is based continue to be fulfilled on an ongoing basis, with a particular emphasis on third-country developments that may impact the financial stability of the Union or of one and more of its Member States. The ESAs would notably submit an annual report on its findings to the Commission. This clarified role would require the analysis of third country developments on an ongoing basis and to coordinate the work with interlocutors within or outside the organisation.

However, the three ESAs do not have the same workload in terms of equivalence decisions. ESMA is in charge of 11 legislative texts out of 13 regulations of the three ESAs that allow for third country equivalence decisions. EIOPA and EBA are in charge of one text each providing for third country equivalence (i.e., Solvency II and CRDIV/CRR respectively). As a consequence, the additional resources needed by ESMA should be more important than those needed by EIOPA and EBA.

The additional resources for ESMA can be estimated at 9 FTEs and related transaction costs can be estimated at EUR 1 million per year. For EIOPA and EBA, the additional human resources can be estimated at 2 FTEs and related transactions costs can be estimated at EUR 200 000 per year.

iii. Specific task for ESMA

The proposal would confer a stronger mandate on ESMA to foster cooperation among national competent authorities in relation to potential cross-border cases of market abuse, while the investigation, enforcement and prosecution would remain at national level. Under this legislative proposal, ESMA would play a role of "information hub" to collect and disseminate upon the request of regulators trading data involving multiple EU jurisdictions. In addition, if and when a competent authority identifies a suspicious cross-border transaction in the course of the oversight process, it would be required to report it to ESMA which would in turn be tasked with actively coordinating the investigatory activities at EU level. Such structure would go beyond the existing Market Abuse Regulation and Market in Financial Instruments Regulation mandates as it would give ESMA enhanced coordination powers and facilitate the work of regulators engaged in cross-border investigations. Those new tasks would require 2 additional FTEs (one for coordination, one for IT services) in addition to IT costs necessary to establish a 'drop box' where competent authorities can download and upload documents provided by their peers and related to market abuse surveillance and investigations. Those recurrent IT costs are estimated at EUR 100 000 per year and the one-off IT costs are estimated at EUR 500 000.

Among the reporting requirements set out in MiFID II/MiFIR, there is an obligation for the national competent authorities to collect data from trading venues on a high number of financial instruments and transaction reports submitted (about 15 million EU-wide) by investment firms. Under the proposal, ESMA will be charged with centralising the collection of reference data according to MiFID II/MiFIR and to collect it directly from trading venues. The existence of common IT infrastructure within ESMA is a way of enhancing supervisory convergence concerning MiFID2/MiFIR implementation. Given the increase of data to be reported, ESMA will need additional resources, including IT resources. Centralisation of reporting transactions would require 8 FTEs as well as IT costs (EUR 3 million in the first year and EUR 2 million in maintenance for the following years).

iv. Specific task for EIOPA

Under this legislative proposal, EIOPA would also be conferred with new powers in respect of internal models of insurance undertakings. EIOPA would notably be empowered to undertake an independent assessment of the applications to use or change an internal model and to issue an opinion to the competent authorities concerned. In case of disputes among competent authorities over an internal model, the possibility for EIOPA to assist in the settlement of disputes, by conducting a binding mediation, will be enhanced. EIOPA currently has an 'internal model team' that comprises 4 full-time employees (and in the near future, 5 employees). This new task conferred on EIOPA would considerably increase the workload of such a team and require additional staff specialised in internal models. Those needs in terms of human resources can be estimated at 5 additional FTEs, given the technical nature of the work.

To summarise, this legislative financial statement assumes that the attribution of new and stronger indirect supervisory powers to the ESAs may imply:

- For EIOPA: 18 FTEs (15 TAs and 3 SNEs) would be needed; EUR 200 000 per year for translation costs
- For ESMA: 30 FTEs (24 TAs and 6 SNEs) would be needed; EUR 3.5 million one-off IT costs; EUR 2.1 million per year for IT maintenance costs; EUR 1 million per year for translation costs.
- For EBA: 13 FTEs (11 TAs and 2 SNEs) would be needed; EUR 200,000 per year for translation costs

III. Funding

i. Resources for calculation of the annual contributions

This legislative proposal aims to change the financing of the ESAs. This finance will mainly rely on a subsidy from the general budget of the EU as well as annual contributions from the entities within the remit of the authority. The legislative proposal indicates that the annual contributions from the private sector should be collected indirectly by the ESAs through authorities designated by each member States. Even in that scenario, the ESAs would have to: (i) request information from national competent authorities; (ii) calculate the annual contributions; and (iii) send this information to the Member States/national competent authorities. Then, the national competent authorities or the Member States would: (i) prepare the invoices; and (ii) collect the annual contributions from the private sector. Finally, the ESAs would verify the amounts of annual contributions received from the Member States/NCAs. The Member States/national competent authorities would be in charge of taking enforcement measures in case of non payment. The number of entities within the remit of the ESAs is very important. There are more than 11,600 credit institutions and investment firms within 's remit, 20,000 entities within ESMA's remit and 20,000 insurance and pension undertakings within EIOPA's remit. As a consequence, the extra-staff needed for this new task can be estimated at 4 additional FTEs (including 3 for data collection and fee calculation and 1 for running the IT system).

In addition, this new funding system will require building a new IT system. Instead of developing their own IT system, the three ESAs could develop a common IT infrastructure, which would create synergies. A common IT interface would also be more practical for financial market participants that can be subject to the payment of a fee to more than one ESA (e.g. investment firms).

Such an IT system could be evaluated at EUR 1.5 million (one off-costs, i.e. EUR 500,000 for each ESA) and then EUR 300 000 of maintenance costs per year (i.e. EUR 100,000 for each ESA). This new IT system would need to interface with the activity-based accounting system of the ESAs.

ii. Resources for calculation, invoicing and collection of supervisory fees (ESMA)

This legislative proposal would grant ESMA new direct supervisory powers (see next section). Therefore, ESMA would levy fees on the entities that it will supervise directly or will receive fees for the services that they would provide. ESMA needs new resources to invoice those entities and collect fees from them.

Four new sectors will be transferred to ESMA (funds, prospectuses, benchmarks, data reporting services providers). It can be estimated that one FTE per sector would be needed, i.e., 3 additional FTEs.

To summarise, this legislative financial statement assumes that the changes in the funding of the ESAs may imply:

- For EBA and EIOPA: 4 additional FTEs (1 TA and 3 CAs) and IT systems estimated at EUR 0.5 million (one-off costs) and EUR 100 000 per year (maintenance costs)
- For ESMA: 7 additional FTEs (1 TA and 6 CAs) and IT systems estimated at EUR 0.5 million (one-off costs) and EUR 100 000 per year (maintenance costs)

IV. Direct Supervisory powers -ESMA

As a way of introduction, it should be recalled that entities subject to direct supervision by ESMA should pay fees to ESMA (one-off costs for registration and recurrent costs for ongoing supervision) . This is the case for credit rating agencies (see COM delegated regulation 272/2012) and trade repositories (COM delegated regulation 1003/2013).

Under this legislative proposal, ESMA will be in charge of the direct supervision of European Venture Capital Funds (EuVECA), European Social Entrepreneurship Funds (EuSEF) and European Long Term Investment Funds (ELTIFs). The supervisory duties would consist of authorisation/notification (passporting) of those funds and day-to-day supervision. ESMA will also have direct investigative powers vis-a-vis those funds. Currently, there are 117 EuVECA funds (managed by 97 EuVECA managers), 7 EuSEF funds (managed by 3 EuSEF managers) and less than 10 ELTIFs authorised in the EU. As those funds are relatively new structures, the number of registrations is high (e.g., 22 new EuVECA in 2016). Because of the new legal framework applying to EuVECA or EuSEF and the changes in the capital charges for insurance companies' investments in ELTIFs, the number of requests for authorisation is expected to increase. Additional staff specialised in asset management shall therefore be hired by ESMA. Those needs in term of human resources can be estimated at 7 FTEs (including one FTE specialised in IT and one data analyst). One IT system is also needed to manage the authorisation and the supervision process as well as for the collection of data from the funds. Those costs are estimated at EUR 500 000 (one-off costs) as well as EUR 100 000 per year for maintenance.

It should be noted of this transfer of powers from the NCAs to ESMA as regards the authorisation and the day-to-day monitoring of those funds (ELTIFs, EuVECA and EuSEF funds) could also imply a reduction of the NCAs staff currently dealing with their supervision. The NCAs with the largest asset management industry employs a large number of FTEs dealing with funds, mainly UCITs and Alternative Investment Funds (AIFs) (i.e. LU 197 FTEs, FR 102, DE 120, NL 25, IT 65/70 plus regional branches, UK 100). It can be estimated that the creation of 7 FTEs at EU level to supervise ELTIFs, EuVECA and EuSEF should also lead to a global decrease in NCAs staff of 7 FTEs. If the number of funds increases in later years more resources will be needed but these will then be funded by fees from the industry.

Under the legislative proposal, ESMA will also be in charge of the approval of some prospectuses (wholesale non-equity prospectuses, prospectuses drawn up by specialist issuers, prospectuses of asset-backed securities, and prospectuses by third country issuers), including their supplements. It can be estimated that ESMA will approve 1600 prospectuses per year (1100 prospectuses, 400 ABS prospectuses, 60 prospectuses from specialist issuers). Furthermore, this proposal is also transferring to ESMA the supervision of advertisements related to those prospectuses that would be approved by ESMA. To carry out the above task, ESMA should have adequate staff resources with the right language skills and sufficient knowledge of the relevant national rules on consumer protection, notably for the control of marketing materials. It is estimated that ESMA would need to employ 35 FTEs (including 33 specialised in prospectuses, 1 FTE specialised in IT system and 1 data analyst). Those new powers would also imply IT costs to manage the approval process of prospectuses. Those costs are estimated at EUR 500 000 (one-off costs) as well as EUR 100 000 per year for maintenance. As the draft prospectuses can be submitted for approval in the 23 official languages of the EU, these new powers granted to ESMA would also imply translation costs estimated at EUR 1,2 million per year.

ESMA would approve 1,600 prospectuses out of the 3,500 prospectuses approved by all the NCAs across the EU, i.e. 45% of all the EU prospectuses. As a consequence, this transfer of powers should be accompanied by a decrease in the NCAs staff dealing with the approval of prospectuses that would be approved by ESMA.

This legislative proposal also foresees that ESMA will authorise and supervise administrators of critical benchmarks, approve the endorsement of third country benchmarks, and recognise the administrators located in third countries. ESMA will also be conferred with investigative powers as regards those benchmark administrators. Given the synergies that a direct supervision at EU level would provide, it can be estimated that 10 additional FTEs should be hired. This transfer of powers to ESMA would allow avoiding the recruitment of extra staff by the national competent authorities to deal with the supervision of critical benchmark administrators⁵⁴.

ESMA will be in charge of registering data reporting services providers (i.e., approved reporting mechanisms, approved publication arrangements and consolidated tape providers) that are new types of entities, created by the Market in Financial Instruments Directive. ESMA will also ensure their ongoing supervision and it will be empowered to conduct investigations. This will also necessitate additional specialised staff estimated at 20 FTEs, including 3 FTEs specialised in IT systems and 2 data analysts. Given the large number of data managed by those entities, a large IT system is needed to assess their quality, the way they are processed and published. Those IT costs are estimated at EUR 2 million (one-off costs) as well as EUR 400 000 per year (maintenance costs). This transfer of powers to ESMA would allow avoiding the recruitment of extra staff by the national competent authorities to deal with the supervision of data reporting services providers.

To summarise, this legislative financial statement assumes that the new direct supervisory powers of ESMA over the above-mentioned entities would imply:

- The recruitment of 65 additional FTEs until 2022.
- One-off IT costs are estimated at EUR 3 million;
- Recurrent IT costs estimated at EUR 600 000 per year.
- Translation costs are estimated at EUR 1,2 million per year.

V. Overheads and legal support

The overheads in terms of resources support at the agencies level cover Human Resources, Finance, Facility Management, Coordination and IT basic support (excluding IT pan European projects). Given their extensive regulatory work, the ESAs have also important needs in terms of legal support. Based on ESMA's Activity Based Management system, the Resources overheads and legal support stand respectively account for 22% and 13% of the total staff. In other words, it means that for 7 FTEs executing a core activity, roughly 2 additional staff are allocated to resources overheads and 1 staff to legal support. Taking into account that the ESAs, while growing, can further develop economies of scale, we assumed in this Legislative Financial Statement that the overheads in terms of resources and the legal support would stand for 18% and 8% of the total staff respectively.

As a consequence, until 2022 the increase in terms of human resources (FTEs) can be summarised as follows:

EBA:

	Core Activity	Resources Overheads	Legal support	Total
Governance	4	1	1	6
Indirect Supervisory powers	13	3	2	18
Funding	4	1	0	5
Total	21	5	3	29

EIOPA:

	Core Activity	Resources Overheads	Legal support	Total
Governance	4	1	1	6
Indirect Supervisory powers	18	4	2	24
Funding	4	1	0	5
Total	26	6	3	35

ESMA:

	Core Activity	Resources Overheads	Legal support	Total
Governance	7	2	1	10
Indirect Supervisory powers	30	7	3	40
Funding	7	2	0	9
Direct Supervisory powers	65	16	6	87
Total	109	27	10	146

In order to further reduce the costs incurred by the ESAs, a large number of new FTEs could be employed as Contract Agents (CAs) or Seconded National Experts (SNEs). However, the number of SNEs should not be overestimated. The ESAs might face difficulty recruiting such experts because of the costs this would represent for Member States and national competent authorities. In addition to these difficulties with their availability, in the area of direct supervision it should be expected that they will provide essential experience when ESMA takes up those tasks, but in the long run beyond the start-up phase it will be more important for ESMA to maintain expertise in house and rely relatively more on Temporary Agent staff. The following table provides for an indicative split of staff into those categories.

	2019	2020	2021	2022
Temporary Agents	63	104	121	147
Seconded National Experts	5	11	15	15
Contractual Agents	29	37	41	48
Total	97	152	177	210

(staff in 2021 and later years is indicative)

VI. Premises

The modifications of tasks will also imply new resources in terms of premises for the ESAs. The estimated additional costs have been taken into account for both ESMA and EIOPA. Regarding EBA, no additional costs have been accounted for in this document as no information is available at this time regarding the new seat and the size of the building proposed by the Member States.
