AGREEMENT CONTINUING THE INTERNATIONAL SCIENCE AND TECHNOLOGY CENTER

THE PARTIES TO THIS AGREEMENT,

CONCERNED about the worldwide threat posed by the proliferation of nuclear, radiological, chemical, and biological weapons (hereinafter weapons of mass destruction or “WMD”) and the use of nuclear, radiological, chemical, and biological materials as weapons;

REAFFIRMING the need to prevent the proliferation of technologies, material, and expertise related to WMD and their means of delivery;

RECALLING United Nations Security Council Resolution 1540, which decided that all States have an obligation to refrain from providing any form of support to non-State actors that attempt to develop, acquire, manufacture, possess, transport, transfer, or use nuclear, chemical, or biological weapons and their means of delivery;

RECOGNIZING that collaborative, multilateral efforts among states are an effective means for preventing such proliferation, and recognizing the important role of scientific research and technological development as key elements of today’s proliferation challenges;

TAKING INTO ACCOUNT the provisions of the Agreement Establishing an International Science and Technology Center (hereinafter “the ISTC” or “the Center”), signed at Moscow on November 27, 1992 (hereinafter “the 1992 Agreement”) and the Protocol on the Provisional Application of the Agreement Establishing an International Science and Technology Center, signed at Moscow on December 27, 1993 (hereinafter “the Provisional Application Protocol”);

ACKNOWLEDGING the need for the ISTC to minimize incentives to engage in activities that could result in the proliferation of WMD or related materials by supporting and cooperating in research and development activities for peaceful purposes of scientists and engineers in states with technologies, expertise, and related materials applicable to WMD, and the ISTC’s past contributions to preventing the proliferation of WMD and to promoting scientific cooperation among states;

REALIZING that the success of the ISTC requires strong support from governments, the European Union and the European Atomic Energy Community (hereinafter “EURATOM”), non-governmental organizations, foundations, academic and scientific institutions, and other inter-governmental and private sector organizations;

DESIRING that the ISTC continue its work in light of recent changes in membership of the ISTC;

DESIRING further to adapt the ISTC to conditions that have changed since the ISTC was founded so that ISTC activities provide impetus and support to participating scientists and engineers, including those with knowledge and skills applicable to WMD or their delivery systems (including dual-use knowledge and skills), in developing international scientific partnership, strengthening global security, and fostering economic growth through innovation; and

DECIDING, in order to accomplish the ISTC’s goals more effectively through scientific cooperation, to continue the ISTC by entering into this Agreement, based on the 1992 Agreement with revisions, and to supersede the Provisional Application Protocol;

HAVE AGREED AS FOLLOWS:

ARTICLE 1
