Instead of: "The Council for information support to the judicial system which is a council or board set up for co-operation and co-ordination regarding the registers kept for supporting the law enforcement authorities, for instance the registers referred to in the document. It comprises representatives from all law enforcement and judicial authorities."

it should read: "The Council for information support to the judicial system, which is a council or board set up for co-operation and co-ordination regarding the registers kept for supporting the law enforcement and judicial authorities, comprises representatives from all law enforcement and judicial authorities."

Page 18, first paragraph, first sentence:

Instead of: "A new computer system (SHS/Distribution and Collection System) is means for secure communication, also known as government e-link, that makes secure communications between authorities possible."

it should read: "A new computer system (SHS/Distribution and Collection System) is set up for secure communication, also known as government e-link, which makes secure communications between authorities possible."

Page 28, paragraph 6.2.2, last sentence:

Instead of: "It became clear during the visit that international exchange of information mostly works well at police level but seems to be more difficult or even impossible, in particular when other Member States require judicial requests for providing rather straightforward but nevertheless crucial information needed rapidly in an ongoing investigation or intelligence operation"

It should read: " It became clear during the visit that international exchange of information mostly works well at police level but seems to be more difficult or even impossible in particular matters. That is the case when other Member States require judicial requests for providing rather straightforward information needed rapidly in an ongoing investigation or intelligence operation."

Page 32, paragraph 6.3.1, second paragraphe:

Instead of: "The Ministry is aware of the police's information deficit as regards Europol activities, and has instructed a management committee to follow up on this issue. The Ministry has not instructed a management committee to follow up on the issue of the police's information deficit as regards Europol activities. As said above, the Ministry has elaborated a plan to follow up on issues related to the integration of international police co-operation, including exchange of information, within the national police work."

It should read: "The Ministry is aware of the police's information deficit as regards Europol activities, and has instructed a management committee to elaborate a plan to follow up on issues related to the integration of international police co-operation, including exchange of information, within the national police work."
