A
Accompaniment		Operational activities consisting of going with those assisted, to pre-determined locations, for a specified extent under mandate-defined conditions, in order to reinforce and monitor the military assistance process and encourage continuity. It further helps to restore, maintain and enhance the self-confidence of the units accompanied and to better evaluate their performances.

Advance Planning	AP	Planning conducted continuously at differing levels (political and military strategic, operational, tactical) to allow the EU to deal better with potential crises in a timely manner. Planning products inform and allow a smooth transition to the formal Crisis Response Planning for an identified crisis. There are two forms of Advance Planning: Generic Planning and Contingency Planning.
Advanced / Specialised Training		Training which gives participants a detailed overview of the tasks and challenges, their role and responsibilities of working in a specialised area of professional expertise in EU HQs or a CSDP mission or operation both at the operational and strategic level.

Advising		A range of activities that improve the performance of designated actors by providing expertise to achieve strategic, operational or tactical objectives.
Aeromedical Evacuation	AE	The movement of either casualties or patients under medical supervision and care from a Point of Wounded to MTF and/or between MTF, as an integral part of the treatment continuum.
After-Action Review	AAR	In the context of EU exercises, a facilitated discussion which may take place after the conduct of an exercise that actively involves the training audience.
Air and Missile Defence		Active and passive actions aimed to protect friendly forces and non-combatant personnel in the Joint Operations Area from air and missile attacks.

EEAS(2020) 176 Rev 2

TERM	ACRONYM	DEFINITION

Air Logistic Operations		Those tasks, other than airborne missions, conducted to deploy, sustain, distribute and recover personnel, equipment and supplies, as well as the extraction of persons.
Air Mobility		Enables the deployment and sustainment of personnel and materiel at the global, regional or theatre level and across the entire range of operations. Air Mobility can be exerted through Airlift, Air-to-Air Refuelling, Aeromedical Evacuation, Airborne Operations and Air Logistic Operations.
Air Power		Within the framework of the EU is the capacity to project power from the air to shape and influence the course of CMO.
Airport of Embarkation	APOE	The airport at which final preparations for embarkation are completed and through which assigned troops, materiel, and vehicle loads for aircraft are called forward and loaded onto the strategic airlift.
Airborne Operations		Provide air-delivered combat power to seize ground or installations through the delivery of land forces, by airdrop or landing in the vicinity, near or directly onto an objective.
Area of Operation	AOO	An operational area defined by a joint commander for land or maritime forces to conduct military activities. Normally, an area of operations does not encompass the entire joint operations area of the joint commander but is sufficient in size for the joint force component commander to accomplish assigned missions and protect forces.
ARGUS		European Commission (CION) General rapid alert system.
Assembly Area	AA	An area where personnel and materiel are brought together and can be reassembled to integrate a level of unit capability (i.e. drivers married up with vehicles, air parties married up with sea parties or force elements married up with materiel).

G
Gender		Gender refers to the social attributes and opportunities associated with being male and female and the relationships between women and men and girls and boys, as well as the relations between women and those between men. These attributes, opportunities and relationships are socially constructed and are learned through socialisation processes. They are context/time-specific and changeable. Gender determines what is expected, allowed and valued in a woman or a man in a given context. Gender is not a synonym for the word 'sex'. Sex goes back to the biological differences between men and women. These differences are universal and timeless. They do not vary either in space (different countries) or in time (different periods).
Gender analysis		A critical examination of how differences in gender roles, activities, needs, opportunities and rights/entitlements affect men, women, girls and boys in certain situations or contexts. Gender analysis examines the relationships between females and males and their access to and control of resources and the constraints they face relative to each other. A gender analysis should be integrated into all sector assessments or situational analyses to ensure that gender-based injustices and inequalities are not exacerbated by the action being taken and that where possible, greater equality and justice in gender relations are promoted.
Gender equality		This refers to the equal rights, responsibilities and opportunities of women and men and girls and boys. Equality does not mean that women and men will become the same but that women's and men's rights, responsibilities and opportunities will not depend on whether they are born male or female. Gender equality implies that the interests, needs and priorities of both women and men are taken into consideration, recognising the diversity of different groups of women and men. Gender equality is not a women's issue but should concern and fully engage men as well as women. Equality between women and men is seen both as a human rights issue and as a precondition for, and indicator of, sustainable people-centred development.
Gender mainstreaming		The (re)organisation, improvement, development and evaluation of policy processes, so that a gender equality perspective is incorporated into all policies at all levels and all stages, by the actors normally involved in policy-making. Mainstreaming a gender perspective is the process of assessing the implications for women and men of any planned action, including legislation, policies or programmes, in all areas and at all levels. It is a way to make women's and men's concerns and experiences an integral dimension of the design, implementation, monitoring and evaluation of policies and programmes in all political, economic and societal spheres so that women and men benefit equally, and inequality is not perpetuated.
