EXPLANATORY MEMORANDUM

1. CONTEXT OF THE PROPOSAL

• Reasons for and objectives of the proposal

It is important to ensure that mobile EU citizens can fully exercise their EU citizenship rights in the context of the next elections to the European Parliament.

Democracy is one of the values on which the European Union is founded. Every citizen has the right to participate in the EU's democratic life and decisions are to be taken as openly and as closely as possible to the citizen. EU citizens are directly represented in the European Parliament.

EU citizenship entails specific democratic rights. EU citizens who have exercised their right to live, work or study in a Member State of which they are not a national ('mobile EU citizens') have the right to vote and stand as a candidate in elections to the European Parliament in their Member State of residence.

Council Directive 93/109/EC lays down the detailed arrangements for the exercise of their electoral rights in elections to the European Parliament in their Member States of residence.

In the EU Citizenship Report 2020¹, the Commission expressed its intention to propose an update of Council Directive 93/109/EC on the right of mobile EU citizens to vote and stand as candidate in elections to the European Parliament. The aim is to facilitate the provision of information to citizens and improve the exchange of relevant information among Member States, including to prevent multiple voting. The Commission Work Programme for 2021 announced a legislative initiative to improve the electoral rights of mobile EU citizens.

Despite the measures currently in place, mobile EU citizens still face difficulties in exercising their electoral rights in elections to the European Parliament. Problems include difficulties in obtaining correct information on how to vote and stand as candidate, burdensome registration processes, and the effect of deregistration from elections in the Member State of origin. Specifically, the information exchange between Member States on registered voters and candidates in order to prevent multiple voting in elections to the European Parliament is being hindered by an inconsistent scope and deadlines for data exchange and collection.

This initiative updates, clarifies and strengthens the existing rules to address the difficulties faced by mobile EU citizens, with the aim to ensure broad and inclusive participation in the 2024 elections to the European Parliament, support mobile EU citizens in the exercise of their rights and protect the integrity of elections.

This proposal builds on long-standing and regular exchanges with Member State's competent authorities through the Commission's dedicated implementation group for the directives, the expert group on electoral matters, and two further dedicated joint meetings of the multidisciplinary European Cooperation Network on Elections and the expert group on electoral matters.

This is an initiative under the regulatory fitness and performance programme (REFIT).

• Consistency with existing policy provisions in the policy area

A New Push for European Democracy is a priority of the Commission as announced by President von der Leyen in the Political guidelines of the Commission 2019-2024².

The European Democracy Action Plan³ presented by the Commission on 3 December 2020 announced the Commission's intention to reinforce the protection of electoral processes and propose a new EU operational mechanism to strengthen cooperation between Member States and regulatory authorities. All measures proposed are coherent with the objectives inspiring Council Decision 2018/994 on the revision of EU electoral law.

This initiative is also closely related to the proposal to recast Council Directive 94/80/EC of 19 December 1994⁴ and to the work being done on the other initiatives in the transparency and democracy package of the Commission Work Programme 2021. This initiative will also be accompanied by a Communication in which one aim is to support electoral participation of mobile EU citizens.

- Consistency with other Union policies

The proposal ensures consistency with the EU Single Digital Gateway Regulation⁵ regarding access to high-quality information with regard to Union and national rules applicable to citizens exercising or intending to exercise their rights derived from Union law in the field of the internal market and with the ‘Union of Equality: Strategy for the Rights of Persons with Disabilities 2021-2030’⁶ which seeks to guarantee political rights of persons with disabilities on an equal basis with others⁷. It also complements other EU policies related to democracy and the digital world⁸. By seeking equal access to electronic or internet voting solutions for mobile EU citizens, the proposal aims at better protecting their fundamental rights, and enhances overall democratic participation.

The initiative is consistent with EU legislation on data protection.

2. LEGAL BASIS, SUBSIDIARITY AND PROPORTIONALITY

- Legal basis

Article 20 TFEU establishes Union citizenship. Articles 20(2)(b) and 22(2) TFEU and Article 39 of the EU Charter of Fundamental Rights, provide that citizens of the Union have the right to vote and stand as candidates in elections to the European Parliament in their Member State of residence, under the same conditions as national of that State. Article 22 TFEU provides that the exercise of this right is to be subject to detailed arrangements adopted by the Council, acting unanimously in accordance with a special legislative procedure and after consulting the European Parliament.

Council Directive 93/109/EC sets down those detailed arrangements for the exercise of electoral rights for elections to the European Parliament.

- Subsidiarity (for non-exclusive competence)

The electoral rights of mobile EU citizens to participate in elections to the European Parliament are set down in the Treaty on the Functioning of European Union as part of their rights as Union citizens. The legal framework for the exercise of electoral rights by mobile EU citizens involves the interaction of EU and national rules. The Union acts to implement the Treaty principle establishing the electoral rights of mobile EU citizens, in particular through Council Directive 93/109/EC.

Since cross-border matters are beyond the reach of individual Member States, identified problems cannot be addressed by Member States acting individually. Providing common standards and procedures for the right of mobile EU citizens to vote and stand as candidates in elections to the European Parliament and on the exchange of information about the relevant voters and candidates to prevent multiple voting can only be properly achieved at EU level.

- Proportionality

The targeted measures proposed do not go beyond what is necessary to achieve the long-term objective of developing and strengthening EU democracy. They improve and refine the framework governing the exercise by mobile EU citizens' electoral rights granted under the Treaties, and better address multiple voting in the context of the elections to the European Parliament by enhancing the current exchange of information system. The proposal therefore complies with the principle of proportionality.

- Choice of the instrument

The Council Directive already contains a robust set of norms on the standards and procedures for the exercise of electoral rights by mobile EU citizens. This proposal is intended to provide targeted changes to that Council Directive to address certain identified shortcomings and obstacles that Member States and citizens encounter. Given the necessity to update language, obsolete references and provisions, it is appropriate to recast the Council Directive. Since this proposal is to recast the Council Directive, the same type of legal instrument is the most appropriate.

3. RESULTS OF EX-POST EVALUATIONS, STAKEHOLDER CONSULTATIONS AND IMPACT ASSESSMENTS

- Ex-post evaluations/fitness checks of existing legislation

A derogation from the 'evaluate first' principle has been applied taking into account the existence of recent reports issued by the Commission. Evidence clearly shows the need for Directive 93/109/EC⁹ to be updated, and this is considered sufficient for the evaluation step. Finally, the external study prepared in support of the impact assessment also includes elements of evaluation of the existing legal framework¹⁰.

- Stakeholder consultations

In preparing the current proposal, the Commission has been in close dialogue and consultation with the relevant stakeholders.

The proposal is based among others on an open public consultation¹¹ of citizens, non-governmental organisations and local and regional authorities, relevant studies including from the Academic Network on EU Citizenship Rights¹², and the findings of an external study prepared to support an impact assessment conducted prior to the proposal¹³. In addition, it takes into account feedback received from dedicated stakeholder consultations, including from mobile EU citizens¹⁴, the European Cooperation Network on Elections¹⁵ and the expert group on electoral matters¹⁶. This was complemented by conclusions from relevant projects funded under the programmes Rights, Equality and Citizenship¹⁷ and Europe for Citizens¹⁸ and by direct feedback from EU citizens received by the Commission and the European Parliament.

- Collection and use of expertise

The proposal was informed by sources of expertise. These sources of information comprised expert consultations with the Commission's expert group on electoral matters and European cooperation network on elections.

Two joint meetings of the European cooperation network on elections and the expert group on electoral matters were hosted on 28 January 2021 and on 10 June 2021. Points discussed in these two joint meetings had already largely been debated in previous meetings and extensively analysed in the Commission's report on the 2019 elections to the European Parliament¹⁹.

- Impact assessment

The proposal is supported by an impact assessment (SWD(2021) 357). Given the similarities between Council Directive 93/109/EC and Council Directive 94/80/EC in terms of both the main beneficiaries (mobile EU citizens) and the rights granted and associated requirements for Member States, the possibilities to improve them and their functioning was assessed in one document. The Regulatory Scrutiny Board issued a positive opinion on the impact assessment (SEC(2021) 576).

The impact assessment examined two alternative policy options for tackling the problems identified. The policy options present a range of potential measures considered to improve the exercise of electoral rights, and to support a fair electoral process by addressing the issue of multiple voting. Specifically, these policy options range from soft, non-legislative measures in

Option 2 provides for an extensive legislative intervention. While respecting the non-discrimination principle as the basis of the Directive, the second policy option aims to put in place an extensive reform of the Directive by, for example, setting legal requirements on the time-limits for registration. The options were scrutinised as to their effectiveness, efficiency, coherence with other EU policies and subsidiarity and proportionality. Option 2 is considered to be the most effective option in achieving all the envisaged objectives. However, Option 1 is the preferred option for reasons of efficiency, coherence and subsidiarity and proportionality.

- Regulatory fitness and simplification

The proposal entails some costs for Member States' and EU administrations arising from increased cooperation, but it is also expected to facilitate efficiencies for authorities due to harmonised processes. Moreover, some Member States already have systems in place that cover the obligations envisaged and would thus not face significant additional costs.

The proposal simplifies the process of registering to vote and to stand as candidates in European elections for mobile EU citizens. It would also reduce their costs compared with the status quo, in which no changes to current provisions would be made.

Under the proposal, no negative economic effects were identified arising from greater integration and democratic participation of mobile EU citizens in their host Member State. Simplifying registration requirements and improving information provision and awareness on voting for mobile EU citizens is expected to have only indirect wider economic impacts insofar as it supports free movement.

The proposal envisages that mobile EU citizens will have equal access to remote and electronic voting possibilities, under the same conditions as nationals of that Member State. Remote voting possibilities facilitate the electoral participation of mobile EU citizens.

The proposal supports optimisation of the technical tool for the exchange of data on registered voters between Member States. This would primarily include a formalised approach to the system supporting the exchange of data that has been operationalised via the encryption tool provided by the Commission, by introducing explicit references to it in Council Directive 93/109/EC. The whole transmission process facilitated by the encryption tool would be further strengthened through the secure transmission of data between Member States, including in case of doubts on individual cases. By doing so, the proposal facilitates the administrative tasks and ICT-related procedures for Member State administrations as main stakeholders.

The digital aspects of the proposal are therefore consistent with the “Digital Check²⁰”.

- Fundamental rights

Article 2 of the Treaty on European Union (TEU) provides that ‘The Union is founded on the values of respect for human dignity, freedom, democracy, equality, the rule of law and respect for human rights, including the rights of persons belonging to minorities. These values are common to the Member States in a society in which pluralism, non-discrimination, tolerance, justice, solidarity and equality between women and men prevail.’

Article 10(1) and (2) TEU provide that ‘The functioning of the Union shall be founded on representative democracy’ and that ‘Citizens are directly represented at Union level in the European Parliament’.

Article 26 of the EU Charter of Fundamental Rights states that the Union recognises and respects the right of persons with disabilities to benefit from measures designed to ensure their independence, social and occupational integration and participation in the life of the community.

This proposal pursues the objectives of these provisions, and is thus compatible with and gives effect to the fundamental rights guaranteed by the EU Charter of Fundamental Rights.

This proposal enhances the freedom of movement for EU citizens (Article 45 of the Charter). It also supports equality in their treatment and opportunities to vote compared with nationals in their Member State of residence. Furthermore, it enhances the right to vote and to stand as a candidate in elections to the European Parliament (Article 39 of the Charter) and their right to good administration (Article 41).

4. BUDGETARY IMPLICATIONS

This proposal does not impose any financial or administrative burden on the EU. Therefore, it has no impact on the EU budget.

5. OTHER ELEMENTS

- Implementation plans and monitoring, evaluation and reporting arrangements

Member States are to adopt and publish by 31 May 2023 the measures necessary to comply with this Directive. Six months after each election to the European Parliament, Member States are to send to the Commission a report on the application of this Directive. Within 1 year after each European Parliament election, the Commission is to submit to the European Parliament and the Council a report on the application of this Directive. The Commission may propose any amendments that it deems necessary. Within two years after the 2029 elections to the European Parliament, the Commission will also conduct its own evaluation of the performance of the Directive, in order to consolidate the information collected from the reports of the Member States and from the meetings of the European cooperation network on elections.

- Explanatory documents

In its judgment of 8 July 2019²¹ and in its further jurisprudence²² the Court of Justice clarified that, when notifying national transposition measures to the Commission, Member States must provide sufficiently clear and precise information, and identify, for each provision of the directive, the national provision(s) ensuring its transposition.

- Detailed explanation of the specific provisions of the proposal

Explanations are only given for the provisions of the Council Directive that are proposed to be changed by this proposal.

1. In order to facilitate access for mobile EU citizens to electoral information, Article 12 sets higher standards for providing electoral information to mobile EU citizens. The proposal requires Member States to appoint authorities that will proactively inform mobile EU citizens residing on their territory of the conditions and detailed rules for registration as a voter or candidate in elections to the European Parliament, before and after their registration, either for electoral purposes or for the purpose set out in Directive 2004/38/EC. This could also entail the provision of information and the use of means of communication adapted to specific voter groups such as young voters.

With the aim to increase mobile EU citizens' awareness and understanding of procedures and practices to register and to participate in elections to the European Parliament, the same article provides for an obligation for authorities appointed by Member States to communicate to mobile EU citizens who were registered as voters or as candidates, specific and tailored information on the following:

- (a) the status of their registration;
- (b) the date of the election and how and where to vote;
- (c) the relevant rules on voter and candidate rights and obligations, including prohibitions and incompatibilities and applicable sanctions in the case of violation of electoral rules;
- (d) means of obtaining further information on the organisation of the election including the list of candidates.

Under Regulation (EU) 2018/1724, Member States have to ensure that users have easy access on their national webpages to user-friendly, accurate, updated and sufficiently comprehensive information on participating in elections to the European Parliament. Member States use different means and channels of communication. Therefore, in order to ensure consistency, the initiative envisages extending correspondingly the quality requirements set out in Regulation (EU) 2018/1724 to the direct and individual provision by Member States of official electoral information to mobile EU citizens.

To increase accessibility and improve information levels, Member States will be required to use the official language of the Member State of residence and an EU official language that is broadly understood by the largest possible number of EU citizens residing on its territory. Member States will also be able to rely on the Your Europe portal. Along with the contact information introduced by amendments to the data mobile EU citizens need to submit in order to register as voters and candidates, this will allow Member States to use electronic channels to communicate information directly. To ensure inclusive electoral participation, the initiative also sets accessibility requirements for the information provided to persons with disabilities and to older people using as a source of inspiration the general comments of the United Nations Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities regarding Article 21 of the United Nations Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities.

2. With the view to reducing the administrative barriers faced by mobile EU citizens, the proposal (Articles 9 and 10) introduces standardised templates for the formal declarations, set out in Annexes I and II, that have to be produced by mobile EU citizens in order to register as voters and candidates. In order to facilitate the identification of mobile EU citizens, in line with the accuracy principle set out in Article 5(1)(d) of the General Data Protection Regulation, current data are supplemented with the personal identification number issued by the home Member State (where applicable) or alternatively with the type of identity document or travel document issued by the home Member State and its serial number. The forms will also contain contact information, to allow Member States to deliver on their obligation to inform. As the annexes to the Directives will be published in the Official Journal of the European Union, they will be available to citizens and national authorities alike in all EU official languages.

3. Amendments to Article 13 aim at streamlining the current information exchange system on the electoral rights of mobile EU citizens. Measures taken to that end include the establishment of a unique set of data, set out in Annex III, which, in addition to the data currently exchanged, will include, the personal identification number issued by the home Member State (where applicable) or the type of identity document or travel document, and the registration date. In addition, the amendments expressly reference the electronic means offered by the Commission to Member States to support the security of the data exchange. The same article limits the scope for registering mobile EU citizens on electoral rolls and on the list of candidates of the host Member State only to European Parliament elections, preventing de-registration from other elections. The Commission will be empowered to adopt implementing acts for the purpose of defining the responsibilities and obligations for the operation of the secure tool set, in accordance with the examination procedure referred to in Article 19.

4. Article 17 introduces regular monitoring and reporting of implementation by Member States. Reports are to contain relevant statistical data on the participation, either as voters or as candidates, of mobile EU citizens in European Parliament elections. In order to better assess the implementation of measures envisaged by the Directive, Member States will be expected to improve their collection of data on the number of mobile EU citizens registered as voters and candidates, where applicable, and on the number of mobile EU citizens who voted. Article 18 provides for the evaluation of the application of the Directive within two years after the 2029 elections to the European Parliament.

5. Articles 9, 10 and 13 confer on the Commission the power to adopt delegated acts to ensure that the templates of formal declarations submitted by mobile EU citizens at their registration as voters or candidates and data set that will be exchanged between Member States, continue to comprise relevant information. Article 20 sets the conditions of the delegation in accordance with Article 290 TFEU.

6. In line with the non-discrimination principle, Article 14 requires Member States to ensure access for mobile EU citizens to the same means of advance voting, postal voting, electronic voting and internet voting, that is available to their own nationals in elections to the European Parliament.

7. The proposal deletes the term “automatically” from Article 9(4) in line with the General Data Protection Regulation’s provisions on the restrictions to automated decision-making. In addition, to ensure access to information on equal terms with their nationals, Member States are required to notify mobile EU citizens of their removal from the electoral roll, if such an obligation regarding its own nationals is in place.

8. With the same aim of increasing awareness of mobile EU citizens and their access to electoral rights, amendments to Article 11 require Member States to inform mobile EU citizens, clearly and in a timely manner, of their registration and of their legal remedies if their application is rejected. It also clarifies the extent of the obligation of Member States by replacing the term ‘action’ with ‘decision’. Under a new paragraph in Article 11, it provides for the right of voters and candidates within the scope of Article 3 of the Directive to correct any inconsistencies or errors in the data contained in the electoral rolls or the lists of candidates under similar terms as for nationals of the host Member State.

9. The proposal also envisages adaptations of the outdated language and references (Article 2(5) and (6), Article 3(a), Article 4(1) and Articles 5, 8, 9, 10, 11 and 16) by replacing the references to the Treaty establishing the European Community with references to the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union and by employing gender-neutral language.

10. Amendments also delete Article 15 as this provision referred to the 1994 European Parliament elections.

11. Article 21 provides for the transposition of the Directive by 31 May 2023, in line with the guidance provided by the Venice Commission of the Council of Europe.

~~Whereas application of Article 8b (2) of the EC Treaty does not presuppose harmonization of Member States' electoral systems; whereas, moreover, to take account of the principle of proportionality set out in the third paragraph of Article 3b of the EC Treaty, the content of Community legislation in this sphere must not go beyond what is necessary to achieve the objective of Article 8b (2) of the EC Treaty;~~

↓ 93/109/EC recital 6 (adapted)

~~Whereas the purpose of Article 8b (2) of the EC Treaty is to ensure that all citizens of the Union, whether or not they are nationals of the Member State in which they reside, can exercise in that State their right to vote and to stand as a candidate in elections to the European Parliament under the same conditions; whereas the conditions applying to non-nationals, including those relating to period and proof of residence, should therefore be identical to those, if any, applying to nationals of the Member State concerned;~~

(7) ~~Whereas Article 8b (2) of the EC Treaty provides for the right to vote and to stand as a candidate in elections to the European Parliament in the Member State of residence, without, nevertheless, substituting it for the right to vote and to stand as a candidate in the Member State of which the citizen is a national; whereas Tthe freedom of~~ Union citizens of the Union to choose the Member State in which to take part in European elections to the European Parliament must be respected, while taking care to ensure that this freedom is not abused by people voting ⇒ the appropriate measures to ensure that no one may vote more than once or standing stand as a candidate in more than one country.

(8) In line with International and European standards, including, the requirements of International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights and the law of the European Convention on Human Rights, Member States should not only recognize and respect the right of Union citizens to vote and to stand as a candidate but also ensure easy access to their electoral rights by removing as many obstacles to participation in elections as possible.

(9) In order to facilitate the exercise by Union citizens of their right to vote and to stand as a candidate in their country of residence, such citizens should be entered on the electoral roll in sufficient time in advance of polling day. The formalities applicable to their registration should be as simple as possible. It should be sufficient for the Union citizens concerned to produce a valid identity card and a formal declaration that includes elements evidencing their entitlement to participate in the elections. Once registered, non-national Union citizens should remain on the electoral roll under the same conditions as Union citizens who are nationals of the Member State concerned, for as long as they satisfy the conditions for exercising the right to vote. Additionally, Union citizens should provide the competent authorities with contact information, enabling those authorities to keep them informed on a regular basis.

- (10) While Member States are competent to determine the right to vote or to stand as a candidate in elections to the European Parliament as regards nationals who reside outside their territory, the fact that non-national Union citizens have been entered on the electoral roll of their Member State of residence should not in itself constitute grounds for their removal from the electoral roll of their home Member State for other types of elections.
- (11) In order to ensure equal treatment of non-national Union citizens seeking to exercise the right to stand as candidates for election in their Member State of residence, such citizens should be required to produce the same supporting documents as those required from candidates who are nationals of the Member State concerned. However, in order to establish that such citizens are beneficiaries of the right laid down in Article 20(2)(b) and Article 22(2) TFEU, Member States should be able to require the production of a formal declaration that includes elements necessary to evidence their entitlement to stand in the elections in question.
- (12) In order to facilitate the accurate identification of voters and candidates registered both in their home Member State and in their Member State of residence, the list of data to be required from Union citizens, when submitting an application to enter the electoral rolls or to stand as candidates in the Member State of residence, should include the personal identification number or the serial number of a valid identity or travel document.
- (13) Union citizens who have been deprived of their right to vote and to stand as candidates, on the basis of an individual civil law or criminal law decision taken by the competent authority, should be precluded from exercising that right in the Member State of residence in elections to the European Parliament. When receiving an application for registration as a voter, Member States may require from the citizen concerned a formal declaration confirming that they have not been deprived of their right to vote. When standing as candidates in their country of residence, Union citizens should be required to produce a statement confirming that they have not been deprived of the right to stand in the elections to the European Parliament.
- (14) It should be possible for the Member State of residence to check that Union citizens who have expressed a desire to exercise their right to stand as candidates have not been deprived of that right in their home country. Where a Member State receives a request to that effect from the Member State of residence, it should provide the necessary confirmation within a time-limit allowing for the admissibility of the candidacy to be effectively assessed. The personal data being exchanged may only be processed for that purpose. Given the fundamental importance of electoral rights, failure by the home Member State to provide timely information on the status of a Union citizen should not result in the deprivation of the right to stand as a candidate in the Member State of residence. In cases where the relevant information is provided at a later stage, the Member State of residence should ensure, by appropriate measures and in accordance with the procedures provided for by its national law, that Union citizens deprived of the right to stand in their home Member State who were registered as candidates or have already been elected, are prevented from being elected or from exercising their mandate.

- (15) Given that the admissibility procedure in a Member State necessarily entails additional administrative steps for a national of another Member State than for the nationals of that Member State, it should be possible for Member States to set a different deadline for the submission of applications to stand as a candidate by Union citizens who are not nationals than that set for national citizens. Any difference in the deadline should be limited to that which is necessary and proportionate in order to allow for the notification of the information from the home Member State to be taken into account in good time. Establishing such a separate deadline should not affect the deadlines for obligations for other Member States to make notifications pursuant to this Directive.
- (16) In order to prevent multiple voting or instances where the same person would stand as a candidate more than once at the same elections, Member States should exchange information gathered from the formal declarations produced by Union voters and Union citizens entitled to stand as candidates. As Member States rely on different data to identify citizens, a common set of data should be envisaged in order to accurately identify Union voters and Union citizens entitled to stand as candidates and stop them from voting or standing as a candidate more than once. The personal data exchanged should be limited to the minimum necessary to achieve these purposes.
- (17) The information exchange between Member States to prevent multiple voting or instances where the same person would stand as a candidate more than once at the same election should not prevent their nationals from voting or standing as candidates in other types of elections. To facilitate communication between national authorities, Member States should be required to designate one contact point for that information exchange. A secure tool was developed in the past by the Commission to be used by the Member States under their responsibility to exchange the necessary data. That secure tool should be incorporated in this Directive, to further support exchanges between Member States' competent authorities. Member States will act as separate controllers for their processing of personal data in this regard.
- (18) For defining responsibilities and obligations for the operation of the secure tool, in accordance with Chapter IV of Regulation (EU) 2016/679 of the European Parliament and of the Council²⁵, implementing powers should be conferred on the Commission. Those powers should be exercised in accordance with Regulation (EU) No 182/2011 of the European Parliament and of the Council.²⁶
- (19) The accessibility of information on electoral rights and procedures is a key component in ensuring the effective exercise of the right enshrined in Article 20(2), point (b) and Article 22(2) TFEU.
- (20) The lack of adequate information, in the context of electoral procedures, affects citizens in the exercise of their electoral rights as part of their rights as Union citizens. It also affects the capacity of competent authorities to exercise their rights and to Member States should be required to designate authorities with special responsibilities for providing appropriate information to Union citizens on their rights under Article 20(2), point (b), and Article 22(2) TFEU and the national rules and procedures regarding participation in and the organization of elections to the European Parliament. In order to ensure the effectiveness of communications, information should be provided in clear and comprehensible terms.

- (21) In order to improve the accessibility of electoral information, such information should be made available in at least one other official language of the Union than that or those of the host Member State, broadly understood by the largest possible number of Union citizens residing on its territory. Member States may use different official languages of the Union in specific parts of their territory or their regions depending on the language understood by the largest group of Union citizens residing therein.

- (26) Data regarding the exercise of rights and the application of this Directive can be useful in the identification of measures necessary to ensure the effective exercise of Union citizens' electoral rights. In order to improve the collection of data for elections to the European Parliament, it is necessary to introduce regular monitoring and reporting of implementation by Member States. In parallel, the Commission should assess the application of this Directive, and submit a report including such an assessment to the European Parliament and to the Council, after each election to the European Parliament.
- (27) It is necessary that the Commission conduct its own evaluation of the application of this Directive within a reasonable timeframe after at least two elections to the European Parliament.
- (28) In order to ensure that the templates of the formal declarations to be submitted by non-national Union citizens seeking to vote or stand in elections to the European Parliament continue to contain relevant data in the context of the exercise of electoral rights by Union citizens, the power to adopt delegated acts in accordance with Article 290 TFEU should be delegated to the Commission to amend those templates. It is of particular importance that the Commission carry out appropriate consultations during its preparatory work, including at expert level, and that those consultations be conducted in accordance with the principles laid down in the Interinstitutional Agreement on Better Law-Making of 13 April 2016. In particular, to ensure equal participation in the preparation of delegated acts, the European Parliament and the Council receive all documents at the same time as Member States' experts, and their experts systematically have access to meetings of Commission expert groups dealing with the preparation of delegated acts.
- (29) The Member States, by ratifying, and the Union, by concluding²⁷, the United Nations Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities have committed themselves to ensure compliance with that Convention. In order to support inclusive and equal electoral participation for persons with disabilities, arrangements for Union citizens residing in a Member State of which they are not nationals to exercise the right to vote and to stand as a candidate there in elections to the European Parliament should have due regard to the needs of citizens with a disability and older citizens.

- (32) This Directive respects fundamental rights and the principles recognised in particular by the Charter, in particular Article 21 and 39 thereof. Accordingly, it is essential that this Directive shall be implemented in accordance with those rights and principles by ensuring full respect for, inter alia, the right to protection of personal data, the right to non-discrimination, the right to vote and to stand as a candidate at elections to the European Parliament, the freedom of movement and of residence and the right to an effective remedy.

3. ~~By 31 December 1997 and thereafter~~ 18 months prior to each election to the European Parliament, the Commission shall submit to the European Parliament and to the Council a report in which it shall check whether the grant to the Member States concerned of a derogation pursuant to Article ~~8b~~ ☒ 22 ☒ (2) ~~of the EC Treaty~~ ☒ TFEU ☒ is still warranted and shall propose that any necessary adjustments be made.
