14a		(4a) Digital operational resilience is an essential condition in order to preserve the critical functions and core business lines of an institution in the event of its resolution, and thereby to avoid disruption to the real economy and to the financial system. Major operational incidents can hamper the capacity of an institution to continue operating and can jeopardise resolution objectives. Relevant ICT service contracts are also essential in order to ensure operational continuity and provide the necessary data in the event of resolution. In order to be aligned with the objectives of the Union framework for operational resilience, Directive 2014/59/EU should be amended accordingly, with a view to ensuring that

14b		(4b) Establishing and maintaining adequate network and information system infrastructures is also a fundamental precondition for effective risk data aggregation and risk reporting practices, which are in turn an essential requisite for the sound and sustainable risk management and decision-making processes of credit institutions. At international level, the Basel Committee on Banking Supervision (BCBS) published in 2013 a set of principles for effective risk data aggregation and risk reporting (BCBS 239) based on two overarching principles of governance and IT infrastructure. Global systemically important banks were required to implement those principles by the beginning of 2016. However, the Report of the European Central Bank (ECB) of May 2018 on the Thematic Review on effective risk data aggregation and risk reporting and the BCBS Progress Report of April 2020 found that the implementation progress made by global systemically important banks was unsatisfactory and a source of concern.
