STATEMENT BY PORTUGAL

“The results of the 2019-2021 census in Portugal indicate that the area inhabited by wolves, i.e. the Trás-os-Montes region and the area surrounding the valley to the south of the Douro, has contracted in the last two decades.

Nationally, the number of packs detected has also decreased slightly, indicating very different trends in the four existing population centres.

One of the main factors jeopardising wolf conservation in Portugal is death caused directly by humans, which in many areas continues to be responsible for the disappearance of the species and/or of packs.”

STATEMENT BY ESTONIA

“Estonia expresses its appreciation for the great efforts of the Polish Presidency in leading the discussions on the proposal for the revision of Regulation (EC) No 261/2004 on air passenger rights and its efforts to build a compromise among the Member States. Estonia remains committed to establishing clear and straightforward rules that guarantee adequate care and assistance for passengers. At the same time, it is important to maintain a balanced approach that takes into account the obligations of air carriers, thereby supporting the sustainability of the aviation sector.

The Regulation shall primarily ensure that passengers receive appropriate care and assistance and are able to reach their destination as soon as reasonably possible. A clear and straightforward compensation system is essential to minimize inconvenience during disruptions and to incentivise carriers to operate delayed flights rather than cancel them.

During the negotiations, various delay thresholds were proposed. Estonia supports the introduction of a uniform five-hour delay threshold for all flights, regardless of journey length, under article 7 of the Regulation 261 /2004. Our detailed reasoning is as follows:

1. The use of a single threshold simplifies the Regulation, makes calculations of compensation simpler and clarifies compensation rules for passengers.
2. From the passenger's perspective, the impact of flight delays is fundamentally the same, regardless of the distance of the journey. Therefore, there is no need to distinguish compensation thresholds based on distance, as the experience of inconvenience due to delays does not vary.
3. In most cases five hours is sufficient time for air companies to repair the plane, find another aircraft or to provide alternative flights.

Given these considerations, the six-hour threshold proposed by the Presidency in the compromise proposal is unacceptable to us. Estonia finds that delays of five hours or more result in considerable inconvenience for passengers and should be compensated for.

In view of the significance of this issue, Estonia is not in a position to endorse the political agreement on the Air Passenger Rights Regulation and will therefore abstain.”

STATEMENT BY THE REPUBLIC OF LITHUANIA

“In general, the Republic of Lithuania supports the objectives of the Air Passengers Rights proposal and welcomes the efforts made by the Presidency to achieve a Political Agreement on this dossier. However, while acknowledging the overall balance of the draft proposal, Lithuania considers that certain key elements deviate even from the currently applicable rules and would diminish passenger protection. In particular, the proposed text in Article 7 of the draft Political Agreement would weaken passengers' rights in cases of flight disruption or delays upon arrival following rerouting after cancellation, leading to longer waiting times and reduced compensation for the inconveniences caused.

The Republic of Lithuania believes that the main goal of the Aviation Passenger Rights legislation is to simplify and update the current rules, ensure clarity of obligations for all parties concerned, and provide adequate and balanced protection for passengers. At the same time, the Republic of Lithuania notes that the European Union has a sufficient range of other instruments available to strengthen the competitiveness of its aviation sector in the global market. However, the competitiveness of the European aviation industry should not come at the expense of travellers' rights. The Republic of Lithuania maintains that passenger rights are a key element and should remain a central focus of this proposal to maximise its value for society.”
