2. Regulation on a monitoring framework for resilient  9629/25
European forests
General approach

The Committee prepared this item for the Council meeting.

Joint statement by Austria, Finland, Sweden and Slovenia

“Austria, Finland, Sweden and Slovenia agree that it is important providing comparable and consistent information on the state and use of forests in the EU in order to contribute to the bio-economy, fighting against climate change, protecting biodiversity and thus strengthening the overall resilience of forests. From the very beginning of the negotiations, Austria, Finland, Sweden and Slovenia made clear that the objectives and benefits of a binding legal act must aim at an actual added value at EU level, avoiding additional costs and disproportionate requirements while at the same time taking national circumstances and established national forest monitoring systems fully into account, as part of a bottom up approach. Moreover, the quality and security of forest data must be preserved, especially with regard to sensitive operational data and the necessary protection of the location of the sampling plots of national forest inventories.

Austria, Finland, Sweden and Slovenia have established a functioning system of forest monitoring for decades based on a comprehensive forest inventory and interpretation of measurements into information by competent national experts. The successful cooperation between the national forest inventories includes, above all, the harmonization of forest data. EU Member States are equally embedded in the international system of reporting with periodic presentation of the state of forests (namely Forest Resources Assessment and State of Europe’s Forests under the Forest Europe process).

Hard work of this and previous Presidencies resulted in the compromise text, representing a significant improvement compared to the initial proposal and is considered as a step in the right direction. This applies in particular to the bottom-up approach based on national forest data, the deletion of geographically explicit maps, forest units, certain indicators and the omission of provisions relating to forest management plans.

However, there are still several key elements that, from our standpoint, would benefit from additional clarification. This essentially concerns the necessity of a legal act in terms of safeguarding the subsidiarity and proportionality principle, the definition of forests, the need to delete individual indicators such as primary and old-growth forests, as well as the number and scope of delegated acts. The latter is of particular concern, as extensive use of delegated acts could undermine the principle of subsidiarity and shift decisions in competence of Member States away from them. In this context, it should be noted that including delegated acts will not only raise legal, but are also very likely to lead to significant increase of the implementation costs for Member States.

Austria, Finland, Sweden and Slovenia assume that the aforementioned issues will be further discussed in the negotiation process ahead and that those key concerns along with additional simplification will be adequately addressed.”

Statement by Finland

“Finland considers the EU Emissions Trading System (EU ETS) to be the corner stone of the EU climate policy and fully supports its effective implementation and recognizes the importance of the amendments to the Registry Regulation. Furthermore, Finland continues to support adding the restitution provision into the Registry Regulation. Taking into account the level playing field between Member States, process economy and legal certainty, Finland sees that the feasible way is to introduce the restitution in the Registry Regulation.

However, Finland has legal concerns considering the article 58a paragraph 2 containing the formula adjusting the number of allowances to be restituted based on monetary value of the year of surrender.

Firstly, we question whether the Commission has remained in the scope of the delegation granted to it under the EU ETS Directive 2003/87/EC, Article 19.3 and Article 290.1 of the TFEU, regarding the amendment of the Delegated Regulation (EU) 2019/1122. Article 58a.2 is in effect a damages clause, which the delegated power of Article 19.3 of the ETS Directive does not cover. Article 58a.2 is also not in line with the definition of an emission allowance, the economic logic of the EU ETS nor setting the Union wide Cap pursuant to the ETS Directive.

Secondly, we consider that art. 58a paragraph 2 is not in line with the Metsä Fibre judgement C-414/23 from 15 May. The judgement gives clear guidelines on the restitution of allowances in paragraphs 31, 32 and 33. According to the judgement, the installation should be placed, as regards the use of greenhouse gas emission allowances, in the same situation in which it would have been, had the provisions which were found to be invalid not existed and had that operator not surrendered excessive allowances. Furthermore, the judgement recognizes that an installation should not be disadvantaged by the fact that the low level of emissions now produced by that installation reduces its interest in being credited with emission allowances for use in future allowance trading periods.

For these reasons, Finland objects the amendment of the Registry Regulation.”
