ITEMS DEBATED

The EU economy after Covid-19: implications for economic governance

The Commission presented its communication on the implications of COVID-19 for the EU's economic governance, after which ministers exchanged views.

The communication marks the relaunch of the consultation on the economic governance framework, taking into consideration the changed environment brought about by the pandemic. Ministers discussed the future of the EU's economic governance framework and expressed their initial views on the way forward.

The public debate aims to reach a broad consensus on the path forward well before 2023. In parallel, the Commission plans to provide guidance during the first quarter of 2022 to facilitate the coordination of fiscal policies and the preparation of member states' stability and convergence programmes, due in April 2022.

Economic recovery in Europe

Ministers took stock of the implementation of the Recovery and Resilience Facility (RRF).

The Commission outlined the state of play on the financing of NextGenerationEU and ministers shared their views.

All member states except the Netherlands have submitted their national recovery and resilience plans (RRPs). The decisions on plans for Austria, Belgium, Denmark, France, Germany, Greece, Italy, Latvia, Luxembourg, Portugal, Slovakia and Spain were adopted at the Ecofin Council of 13 July. Council implementing decisions (CIDs) for Croatia, Cyprus, Lithuania and Slovenia were adopted on 28 July. On 8 September, the Council adopted the decisions on Czechia's and Ireland's plans, and on 5 October the decision on Malta's plan. The CIDs on Estonia's, Finland's and Romania's plans were adopted on 29 October.

By 9 November, the following countries had received their requested pre-financing: Austria, Belgium, Croatia, Cyprus, Czechia, Denmark, France, Germany, Greece, Italy, Latvia, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Portugal, Slovakia, Slovenia and Spain. The total amount disbursed so far is around € 52.4 billion.

The Commission uses resources raised on the financial markets. So far, five syndicated bond issuance events have taken place, including the first ever EU green bond issuance. In addition, in September the Commission started with the EU-Bonds and EU-Bills auctions, raising additional funds to finance NextGenerationEU.

Energy prices, inflation and policy implications

Ministers discussed energy prices and inflation developments, and their policy implications. The discussion was framed by the Commission's communication on tackling rising energy prices.

Ministers exchanged views on the Commission's toolbox of measures that the EU and its member states can use and are already using to address the immediate impact of energy price increases.

Energy prices also played an important role in recent developments in the harmonised index of consumer prices (HICP), with the HICP having increased, as of October 2021, by 4.1% in the euro area over the previous twelve months.

Basel III implementation

The Commission presented the package of legislative proposals to complete the implementation of Basel III into EU law, after which ministers shared their initial views.

Basel III comprises a number of measures agreed by the Basel Committee on Banking Supervision (BCBS) to enhance prudential regulatory standards, supervision and risk management of banks as a response to the global financial crisis of 2007/2008.

The package seeks to strike a balance between differing political objectives, and aims in particular at strengthening the resilience of banks without imposing a significant increase in their capital requirements. In addition, it seeks to implement international standards faithfully, while at the same time aiming to cater for certain European specificities.

Conclusions on the future of the European Semester in the context of the RRF

Ministers approved conclusions on the alignment of the European Semester cycle with the implementation of the Recovery and Resilience Facility (RRF). The conclusions follow up on the exchange of views ministers held at the Ecofin meeting on 5 October on lessons learned from the 2021 European Semester and on ways forward in the context of the RRF.

The conclusions call for a return to the essential elements of the European Semester in the 2022 cycle, especially in terms of reinstating country reports and country-specific recommendations (CSR). They underline the need to safeguard the economic recovery while making sure that fiscal policy is adjusted to the current circumstances and fiscal sustainability is preserved in the medium term. They stress the need to avoid overlaps in the reporting requirements of the European Semester and the implementation of the RRF.

The 2021 conclusions examine, among other things, the statistics used for COVID-19, sustainable development goals and the European Green Deal, surveillance of macroeconomic imbalances, housing costs and inflation, and structural statistics.
