

We work for tomorrow

Is There a Future for Legislation?

Univ.-Prof.ⁱⁿ Dr.ⁱⁿ Maria Bertel
Department of Public Law and Political Science
11th June 2025

Will legislation remain necessary at all?

Does legislation have to take into account the future?

The Future

Are there formal constitutional constraints – direct or indirect – that require legislation to be „future-proof“?

Do substantive constitutional provisions, such as state objectives or fundamental rights, oblige the legislator to consider long-term consequences?

Are there institutional/procedural mechanisms within the organisation of parliament that support or hinder future-oriented legislative decision-making?

Does legislation as such have a future?

Thank you very much for your attention!

University of Graz
Department of Public Law and Political Science
Univ.-Prof.ⁱⁿ Dr.ⁱⁿ Maria Bertel
Head of Department
Universitätsstraße 15/C3, 8010 Graz, Austria
+43 (0) 316 / 380-7418 | maria.bertel@uni-graz.at oeffentliches-recht.uni-graz.at